BULLETIN

MOSCOW — (U.P.) — The Red army was reported today to be counter-attacking so fiercely on the Leningrad and other fronts that German forces have been forced to abandon a number of villages and flee "in panic."

(By Associated Press)

German artillery shells screamed into Leningrad today, the Nazis said, highlighting the gigantic struggle on the Russian front.

The Germans, who previously have claimed to be within 20 miles of Leningrad, easy range for the biggest cannon, gave no details about action on any of the widespread fighting fronts.

The Russians, acknowledging that the hot pace of the life-or-death battle for the city of 3,000,000 was increasing, claimed recapture of three villages and destruction of a heavy gun battery.

The Germans also continued to exert heavy pressure on the big Russian cities of Kiev and Odessa as well as Leningrad.

The Russians reported that the defenses of all three places were holding firm and declared their troops were exacting a heavy toll of German forces attempting to crack the new Soviet defense line along the lower Dnieper river.

The British announced a string of successes for their submarines in the Mediterranean, saying a 23,000-ton Italian troop transport was "almost certainly sunk," a tanker and a supply ship sunk, and a 10,000-ton

Assassination of Former Communist Heightens Tension

VICHY—(INS)—A new political assassination in Paris increased political tensions in Nazi-occupied France today when Marcel Gitton, former French Communist deputy, now an advocate of "collaborationism" died of wounds inflicted last night by an unknown assailant.

Gitton, according to messages from Paris, died this afternoon after having been shot twice. A former Red leader, he later joined Jacques Doriot's Populaire Francaise.

Guitton was attacked by a bicyclist who, according to early reports, was able to make his escape. Bullets perforated the left lung and abdomen of the former deputy who recently had been doing intensive recruiting propaganda on behalf of the anti-Bolshevik Legion.

Turn Down North Main Bridge Plan

County Says Cost Too High; Cite Program of Conservancy Board.

The inoperative Mansfield Conservancy district came back into the picture today as Richland county commissioners indicated they would turn down the state's proposal of a 50-50 financing plan for a $40,000 bridge over Touby's run on North Main street.

Pointing out that the state's new estimate of $40,000 for the bridge was double the county's first estimate, C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the commissioners did not consider it "advisable to spend that much money on a bridge which may not be needed if the conservancy district pushes its flood control project."

Mitchell said members of the Mansfield Conservancy board told him attempts will be made to revive the conservancy project to provide work for men when the defense industries begin to lay off workers.

"If the district carries out its original plan of a flood control project in the Mansfield area, it would be a waste of money to spend $40,000 on a bridge now," Mitchell said.

Set up about eight years ago when $165,000 in bonds were issued to finance the engineering on the project, the conservancy plan has never been put into actual practice. The bonds will be retired in 1943.

Mitchell said the county would propose construction of a cheaper temporary bridge at a meeting with state highway officials in a few days. The new bridge, he said, would be as wide and safe as a cement bridge and it would last several years if needed that long. He asserted that "something definite will be done about the bridge this fall."

He said the county "does not have the ready cash to pay half the cost of a $40,000 bridge," and would have to issue bonds

STRONGER PUNCH

Army Seeks More Equipment, Raises Young Officers.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The army, intent on developing its fighting punch, put another billion dollars worth of combat equipment on its buying list today and simultaneously began shifting field leadership to young officers as tough physically as the men they command.

Both steps, announced by Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, at his press conference yesterday, were expected to raise soldiers' morale.

The extra money, Patterson said, is needed for tanks, anti-tank guns, and anti-aircraft weapons. The request will go soon to congress, which recently trimmed about $550,000,000 off a $1,300,000,000 request for additional weapons.

S. naval officials considered it obvious that the craft was of Axis origin, most likely German.

MISHAP TAKES SECOND VICTIM

Mrs. Lillian J. Rankin, 51, Dies of Injuries In Crash Which Killed T. A. Jones.

Mrs. Lillian J. Rankin, 51, nurse in the Jones rest home in Mansfield, had become the second victim today of a traffic accident Aug. 26 near Ashland which earlier claimed the life of T. Amos Jones, 70, owner of the rest home and the Richland County T. B. sanatorium.

Mrs. Rankin, a passenger in the car driven by Mr. Jones, died late yesterday in Good Samaritan hospital, Ashland, where she was taken shortly after the accident. She suffered chest injuries, fractures of her left leg, and dislocation of her right shoulder.

Although physicians knew she was seriously injured, Mrs. Rankin apparently was showing improvement until yesterday when her condition suddenly became worse. Her death was said to have resulted directly from cerebral embolus.

Mr. Jones died a few minutes after the car he was driving crashed into a bridge and was crushed from behind by a truck. The accident was on U. S. Route 42 northeast of Ashland.

Baruch Urges Single Defense Output Boss

Agency Formed To Aid Small Industries

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A new federal agency set out today to enlist even the smallest industrial plants in the national armament manufacturing drive, but one of President Roosevelt's principal advisers repeated his conviction that a single administrator is urgently needed for the whole defense production program.

Bernard M. Baruch, who conquered a similar military production problem 24 years ago, called not only for a single defense chief but for a blanket ceiling on prices.

Last night, a few hours after Baruch's criticism, the president announced creation of a division of contract distribution in the office of production management, to be headed by Floyd B. Odlum, New York financier.

A White House statement said the new agency was formed to further "a determined move on

HIT 'USE' TAX

Two Senators Fight Further Levy on Automobiles.

WASHINGTON— (U.P.) — Sens. Robert M. La Follette, Prog., Wis., and John A. Danaher, R., Conn., led a fight in the senate today to eliminate from the pending tax bill a $5 annual automobile "use" tax.

If enacted, the tax would be imposed on 32,000,000 owners of motor vehicles and would raise an estimated $160,200,000 of new revenue annually.

La Follette attacked the proposed tax as "unjust and inequitable," contending that it was unfair to tax the owner of a $100 jalopy and the owner of a $3,000 car at the same rate.

VATICAN CITY — (U.P.) — The Vatican announced today that Pope Pius will receive Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal emissary, immediately upon his arrival here next week.

Railroaders Vote 'Yes' By Majorities of 95 To 100 Per Cent.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — Nineteen railroad brotherhoods announced today that their 1,260,000 members had voted overwhelmingly to strike for increased wages and other concessions from the nation's carriers.

Zero hour for the strike was set for 6 p. m., Sept. 11—but this does not mean that the lines, burdened with defense traffic, will become idle at that time. The strike call merely projects the controversy into a new stage of mediation under the National Railway Labor act.

No strike is possible for at least 60 and possibly 90 days.

The strike vote—which swept the membership by 95 to 100 per cent majorities—brought to an end the second stage set up by the railway labor act after weeks of direct labor-railway negotiations had reached stalemate.

Next step is for the national railway mediation board, sitting here, to notify President Roosevelt that an emergency exists. The president is expected to appoint a special fact-finding commission to study the issues and no strike may occur during the 60 days this commission has in which to make its report.

Block-End Truck Parking To Go Into Operation Here.

Mansfield's plan to reserve block-end zones for truck parking in an effort to eliminate traffic congestion on downtown streets because of double-parked trucks will not go into operation until Monday.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said today that the extra-heavy week-end traffic would complicate the setting up of the program and that parking meters at intersections would not be hooded for truck parking today or tomorrow.

Following a conference with 16 trucking company officials Wednesday night, Boals admitted that a rigid schedule for truck deliveries would be impractical under present conditions, and suggested the block-end zone as a substitute plan to control the loading and unloading of trucks.

Meters at the corners will be hooded during the morning and early afternoon hours to allow trucks parking space while making deliveries to downtown stores.

FDR Promises 'Elimination' If Ship's Found

President Declares Attacking Craft Launched Torpedoes Several Times In Daylight, Approves Action In Dropping Depth Bombs.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt said today that the United States destroyer Greer had been attacked more than once, that steps were being taken to track down the marauding submarine, and that the vessel would be eliminated if found.

Mr. Roosevelt, speaking to a press conference, did not say exactly how many attacks had been made on the vessel, which was carrying mail to Iceland. But, he said, they occurred in daylight, and definitely on the American side of the ocean.

He said that while the Greer was alone at the time torpedoes were launched at her with no other American ships nearby, she was clearly marked, and carried an identification number, plus an American flag.

Asked what would be done if the attacking vessel were found, Mr. Roosevelt said he supposed American forces would "eliminate" it or try to. He authorized direct quotation of the word eliminate and said it was a good one.

The chief executive sad the Greer was attacked under conditions of good daylight and visibility. The navy department had announced torpedoes were launched at her yesterday morning and that the destroyer promptly dropped depth charges.

Approves Depth Charges.

Mr. Roosevelt did not say whether all the attacks occurred within a relatively short time yesterday morning or were spaced at intervals.

He left little doubt that he approved the action of the commander in taking immediate steps against the submarine by dropping powerful depth charges.

Mr. Roosevelt said it was very fortunate the destroyer was not hit, remarking that it was beyond his power to say why the aim of the submarine was so poor. He would not disclose whether the undersea craft's periscope was above water, declaring he could not talk about that.

"As a landlubber to a sea expert," a reporter inquired, "is it possible for a submarine to make a mistake in broad daylight at torpedo distance?"

Mr. Roosevelt said he would put the explanation this way: If a submarine had a periscope above the surface there was no excuse for a wrong identification. Most torpedoes, he said, are fired by means of a visual sight.

However, almost all naval vessels, including German and Italian, he added, have listening devices and it is possible to fire at a sound. This method is not nearly as accurate.

Dismisses Shooting War.

Mr. Roosevelt dismissed as hypothetical a question on how he would classify the Greer incident as regards "a shooting war."

To an inquiry whether it was possible for a ship to be on the American side of the Atlantic and at the same time in a belligerent zone proclaimed by Germany, the chief executive said this country never had been notified of the establishment of such a zone. A blockade is never recognized, he added, if it is ineffective.

To a further question, whether the Greer had behaved in accord with instructions and policy in dropping depth charges immediately, the president suggested there was no information to the contrary. He asked his questioner what he would do if attacked.

The president himself brought up the attack on the Greer to open his press conference, telling reporters that he knew they would all be asking about it. He had whispered for a moment first with his naval aide, Capt. John R. Beardall.

The president said he had a couple of thoughts on the attack as a result of listening to one of two broadcasts and reading one or two things said by people in Washington.

Nazis Call Torpedo Attack 'Deliberate War Instigation'

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—As in the famous case of the Athenia at the outbreak of the war, German sources today charged deliberate war instigation in the alleged torpedo attack against the United States navy destroyer Greer off Iceland.

A statement by the navy department at Washington describing how depth charges were dropped by the destroyer "lacks clarity," it was alleged.

"The whole case is being treated with suspicion," a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman said.

"It may have been an incident staged deliberately for the purpose of stirring up the American public as a piece of war propaganda.

"All the allegations made are too vague to be convincing in the least."

There was no formal statement regarding the incident and up until a late hour, nothing had appeared in the German press.

When the Scottish liner Athenia was sunk only a few days after the war broke out, with the loss of a number of lives, Germany charged officially that Prime Minister Winsten Churchill was responsible.

The ship was sent to the bottom, Germany alleged, in a de-

Contracts Let for $120,000 Clubhouse, Work Under Way

Two hours after contracts had been awarded yesterday afternoon, work began on the new $120,000 clubhouse at Westbrook Country club.

Architects Althouse and Jones announced that contracts had been let to three Mansfield firms for the erection of a Georgian white-brick structure to be built onto the present locker house.

The Zediker Masonry company was awarded a contract for general construction work, while the plumbing and heating contract was let to the D. L. Parkinson company. The Richland Electric company received the wiring contract.

Yesterday afternoon the ground was staked out, and today excavation on the basement was started. Within the week, work on concrete footings for the building is expected to start, and shortly after the concrete walls will rise.

Although the winter months may slow progress on the building, the architects believe that the new clubhouse will be finished about the first week in June.

Replacing the picturesque old frame building which burned last May, the new clubhouse, built of brick will be fire-safed, and roofed with slate as an added precaution.

City Finds Only 350 Tons of Rails Here Instead of 1,900

While city officials found today that Mansfield has less than 350 tons of abandoned street car rails buried in its streets as compared to a WPA estimate of more than 1,900 tons, a WPA representative was scheduled to visit the city to complete a survey of a project for removal of the rails.

After figuring the mileage of trolley tracks left in the city, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced that there were little more than 11,000 yards of tracks, weighing less than 350 tons.

Crafton said he did not know where the governmental agency had received information that Mansfield had 1,930 tons. The Columbus WPA office announced last week that Mansfield was second only to Newark in central Ohio with the amount of abandoned tracks. Newark was reported as having 2,350 tons.

The WPA office contacted Crafton earlier this week and informed him that a representative would visit Mansfield today to make a survey of the city's rail problem.

The WPA has been delegated by the federal government to aid

City's Downtown Fire Siren System Damaged By Bolt

Mansfield's street siren system for warning motorists of fire runs by the fire department was out of commission today because a bolt of lightning struck the siren box at the intersection of Third and Walnut streets during Wednesday night's storm

City Electrician Ernest Adams reported the alarm was completely "knocked out" by the bolt which burned through the many electrical coils and wiring connections in the system.

Although the damage was caused during the storm its extent was not discovered until late yesterday. Service-Safety Director C M Crafton said it would be necessary to order new parts for the siren and that there would probably be considerable delay in getting them, partly because of national defense needs

In the meantime Mansfield fire men will make their fire runs without the blast of the huge siren ringing in the their ears The automatic traffic light system which turns all lights red when the alarm is given was not damaged

Mayor William J Locke has written Councilman Fred Miller, chairman of council's finance committee seeking to increase the number of truck drivers and helpers from ten to twelve members At present, the number is set at ten by ordinance.

In his letter to Miller Locke pointed out that the garbage department is collecting from more residents than at any other time in its history Collections for the next three months service amount to $9 900

Locke attempted to add the new workers last month without consulting council but found that the two men he had appointed could not be paid full salary because of the limit set by ordinance The men were paid laborers salaries for their work.

U. S. Navy Hunts Sub Which Attacked Ship

Roosevelt Promises Elimination of Craft If Found, Says Torpedoes Launched In Daylight.

These people reminded him of the father in what he said was an allegorical story.

Uses Allegory.

Once upon a time, at a place where he was living, Mr. Roosevelt related, some country children were on the way to school and some undisclosed person fired at them from the bushes. The father took the position there was nothing to do about it. No reason to search the bushes or take any other steps, because the children had not been hit.

"Is any search of the bushes being made?" the chief executive was asked.

Yes, he responded. In other words, we don't go along with the father of the children. It might even be said that the school teacher (meaning the president) was looking into the matter.

After answering in the negative a question whether the attack on the Greer had resulted in any change in orders to American naval vessels, the president was presented with a reminder that it once had been the practice, in case of attack, to "go and tell papa."

Mr. Roosevelt agreed that was not done any more.

(Some time ago Mr. Roosevelt was asked at a press conference what was the procedure when an American ship on patrol sighted a submarine. His offhand reply was that the ship should radio the submarine's position and pass along the word to papa—meaning himself.)

State Department Silent.

Declaring he had nothing further to say today on the subject, the president dismissed a question whether any grounds for diplomatic action were presented by the shots at the Greer.

Told that one report was that the attack occurred approximately 150 miles west of Iceland, Mr. Roosevelt said he could not discuss approximate locations.

The torpedoes fired at the Greer in yesterday's daylight attack missed, but officials believed that they might have far-reaching consequences in determining the navy's future strategy in the North Atlantic.

For the moment, the state department had nothing to say, and the navy department declined to amplify the laconic three-sentence communique which announced the attack on the Greer—a flush-deck, four-stacker of World war construction, identical in appearance with destroyers traded to Britain.

The fact that the Greer has the same silhouette as the ships now serving with the Royal Navy led to the belief that she might have been mistaken for a British vessel. Some of these already have been damaged or sunk by enemy action.

Question Mistaken Identity.

However, the mistaken identity theory was not universally accepted. Navy men pointed out that the Greer flew the stars and stripes, and one veteran submarine officer was satisfied that the attack was made during daylight.

"You can't see a torpedo track at night," he said, indicating he had reasons to believe that the Greer used the tell-tale feathery wake of the torpedoes to rush to the spot where she dumped her depth bombs.

The submarine's identity was temporarily a mystery, and there was no certainty that a subsequent report from the Greer would add further information, for the action at sea apparently was fast and short-lived.

Berlin almost immediately disclaimed all knowledge of the attack. London, on the other hand, was ready to blame the incident on a Nazi U-boat.

As far as the U. S. navy was concerned, only this much was released:

"The navy department announced that the U. S. S. Greer, en route to Iceland with mail, reported this morning that a submarine attacked her by firing torpedoes which missed their mark. The Greer immediately counter attacked with depth charges.

"Results unknown."

Lacking a more complete report, members of congress were cautious but apprehensive in appraising the clash at sea. They counseled the public against forming hasty opinions, and expressed the belief that the incident was not of sufficient magnitude to plunge the country into war.

There was much conjecture, however, whether the Thursday morning attack represented the initiative of a single submarine commander, or whether it presaged the beginning of an underseas campaign that would respect no nationality in the North Atlantic shipping lanes.

Upon the occupation of Iceland early in July, President Roosevelt specifically issued orders to the navy "that all necessary steps be taken to insure the safety of communications in the approaches between Iceland and the United States and all other strategic outposts."

Part of the ocean that must be traversed to reach Iceland lies within the Nazi-designated war zone which Germany extended westward this spring almost to the coastal waters of Greenland. The United States does not recognize the German right to proscribe such a zone.

Adolf Hitler on three different occasions this year has served notice in his speeches that his U-boats would torpedo any ships that came before their periscopes if the ship represented aid to Britain.

Since the inception of the Atlantic patrol, reports have cropped up from time to time of "shooting" brushes between patrol units and Axis raiders. Their persistence led the senate naval committee to question Secretary Knox.

The navy secretary, testifying on July 11, disclosed that there had been one case where a patrol ship had dropped depth charges.

The destroyer in question, operating off Greenland, had answered an SOS from a sinking steamer and was picking up survivors, he said.

The fact that the Greer was carrying mail to American forces in Iceland made it unlikely, informed sources thought, that she would have been engaged in patrol duties.

In line with navy policy on operations, the destroyer's regular role in the Atlantic patrol was not indicated. Until such information was discontinued on April 1, however, the Greer was listed as the flagship of destroyer Division No. 61.

The ship is commanded by Lieutenant Commander Laurence Hugh Frost, 30, a native of Fayetteville, Ark., who makes his home in Washington, D. C. Her normal complement is nine officers and a crew of 113 men, but many units of the fleet now are carrying larger crews than usual.

The Greer, a 1,200-tonner, was launched in August, 1918, at the Cramp shipyards in Philadelphia. Her armament includes four 4-inch guns, an unspecified number of 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, a dozen torpedo tubes and the usual depth bomb equipment. Her designed speed was 35 knots.

Lives After 265-Foot Plunge

Amazing physicians. Cornelia Van Ierland, who plunged 265 feet from the Golden Gate bridge into the waters of San Francisco bay, is still alive in a San Francisco hospital. Her plunge, an apparent suicide try, approximated a fall from the height of a 20-story building. Shown with her mother in a hospital, the girl suffered a broken back, two broken arms and severe bruises. All available records show it was the longest similar plunge in which the person survived.

for the amount. The county has no bonded indebtedness.

A wood structure, erected by the county more than two years ago after the old bridge collapsed, creates a bottleneck for traffic over busy North Main street and State Route 13.

A consulting engineer will be brought to the city "in a day or two" to estimate the cost of a heavy wood temporary bridge over the creek, Mitchell added. The county will not confer with the state on the project until commissioners have his figures, the chairman said.

Under the state code, the county is obligated to construct bridges on state highways within city limits. The state, however, offered to pay half the cost if the county contributed to the grade elimination project on U. S. Route 30-N west of the city.

When the commissioners agreed to the proposal more than a year ago, they were under the impression that the entire cost of the bridge would not go beyond $22,000, Mitchell explained.

British Officials Quiet on Sub Attack

LONDON —(INS)— British officialdom maintained a cagey silence today but London newspapers leaped headlong into a lively discussion of the submarine attack on the United States destroyer Greer.

London authorities declined to comment, pointing out that Britain was "merely a spectator" as far as the new "shooting" incident was concerned.

But the London Evening News warned that the United States can "no longer expect immunity" and the Evening Standard said the torpedo attack was a "small foretaste of what inevitably will follow if Germany ever is allowed to turn her full attention from the east to the west."

The Evening News editorial said:

"America, standing at the crossroads, receives two reminders today that the geographical isolation of the western hemisphere is rapidly being threatened by the march of events.

"The first reminder was the submarine attack on the destroyer (the Greer).

"The second was Canadian Prime Minister MacKenzie King's appeal (for American war aid).

"The torpedoes that streaked past the destroyer showed that even in her own Atlantic waters the United States no longer can expect immunity."

cruiser and a supply ship badly damaged by torpedoes.

The Petain government at Vichy announced it was protesting to the United States against what it called a "lying campaign" in American newspapers against Gaston Henry-Haye, its ambassador to Washington.

Russian bombing planes stabbed at Berlin during the night but a German communique said the attackers had been driven off by anti-aircraft fire before reaching the city proper and reported one plane shot down.

The British reported they bombed a factory at La Pallice in German-occupied northern France during the night but mentioned no raids on Germany itself. There was little Nazi night aerial activity over Britain.

The tense situation in the Far East was kept to the fore as the Japanese cabinet moved to place national transportation and communication facilities on a wartime footing. The program calls for expansion of existing facilities and was expected to result in further restrictions on private use.

Domei news agency, meanwhile, revived an unofficial proposal that Japanese territorial waters would be extended to preclude American shipments to Soviet Russia via Vladivostok. Arrival of the first shipment of American aviation fuel in Vladivostok by tanker was announced yesterday.

Reds Claim Advance In Counter-Attack

MOSCOW — (AP) — Red army units counter-attacking amid artillery fire on the approaches to Leningrad were reported today to have advanced almost a mile at one point in the battle for Russia's second largest city, taking four villages.

The defences of Leningrad were said to have been bolstered by the arrival of troops from Tallinn, evacuated successfully before the Germans took the Estonian capital. These forces were reported already back in battle against the Nazis.

Pravda, the Communist party organ, reported these developments.

Other dispatches said both sides were bringing up their big guns for the battle of Leningrad.

Russia's two other beleaguered cities—Kiev, the Ukrainian capital on whose approaches the Germans are attempting to attack, and Odessa, the Black Sea port which the Rumanians have locked in siege—also were reported strengthening their resistance.

Red army troops, red navy sailors and embattled civilians of Odessa, fulfilling an oath to defend the city "to the last drop of blood," are mowing down Rumanian forces by the thousands, Pravda reported, and a mass meeting of Kiev's populace took a similar oath to fight to the death for that city.

Berlin Says Reds Fail to Drop Bombs

BERLIN —(INS)— The German high command announced today that a small number of Soviet bombers attempted to raid Berlin during the night but failed to drop any bombs on the capital.

Anti-aircraft batteries shot down one of the two planes which crossed over the city, the statement said.

The attack on Berlin was featured by precise anti-aircraft fire which lasted 10 minutes.

Tells of Russians Slain In Death Trap

By PAUL SJOBLOM
(Finnish Journalist)

WITH FINNISH FORCES, on the Karelian Isthmus—For more than five miles along the road south from Viipuri toward Leningrad lie the dead and debris of what Finnish officers say were three Soviet divisions and auxiliary detachments.

Thousands of Russian corpses, piles of battle-made debris and shell-erupted earth mark the death traps Finnish forces threw about Soviet fighting men retreating from Viipuri.

Possibly 45,000 Russians were caught in successive Finnish encirclements and only 10,000 still are alive, Finnish officers said.

Many of the 10,000 are wounded. The others have been put to work burying their fallen comrades or filling shell holes.

The prize on the prisoners' list is given as Major General Kirpitsnikow, commander of the Red army 43rd division which won the coveted award of the Red Banner for its work in the 1939-40 war with the Finns. The 43rd and the 115th Soviet divisions were smashed in two days of fighting, the Finns said.

Says Subs Play Havoc With Axis Convoys

The cruiser was torpedoed and damaged in the narrow waters of the Strait of Messina between Sicily and the Italian mainland, according to the communique.

Another large liner, possibly the 23,000-ton steamer Duilio which the Italians have pressed into service as a troop transport, was declared to have been torpedoed and "almost certainly sunk."

"For the duration," as they say, it may be just as well for schools to omit teaching European geography.

Some young folks who think they are too old for their parents to "boss" them seem to think it is all right for Dad to finance them.

According to a psychiatrist, it's an inferiority complex that bothers the Japanese—and a man wearing an over-size kimono might be like that.

Still Without Unified Direction

CREATION of a new super defense board, designated as the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board (SPAB, for short), has the appearance of being another application of President Roosevelt's trial and error method, based on his idea, "If it doesn't work we'll try something else."

After a conference with President Roosevelt yesterday, Bernard M. Baruch, who was head of industrial mobilization in the World war, referred to the new seven-man board as "a faltering step forward" and said that what was really needed was a single administrator and a blanket ceiling over all prices.

While the personnel of this new board is impressive, in spots, it seems to be more in the nature of a reshuffling than an actual move toward the single-headed command for which there has been obvious need.

Such boards as have heretofore attempted to function, with division of authority, have probably done the best they could under the handicaps placed upon them, but the methods employed have most certainly been responsible for the slowness with which defense production got under way and the ineptness shown in handling government construction work.

There is always the hope that President Roosevelt will reach the point of putting politics and personal friendships in the background and choose a directing head of the defense production program who is qualified by training and experience to do the big job that lies ahead.

Meanwhile it can be no more than hoped that the new board will function more efficiently than can be anticipated.

Truckers Promise Co-operation

VOLUNTARY co-operation between trucking companies, truck drivers and merchants, along lines discussed at this week's meeting with city officials, should at least bring considerable improvement in this phase of traffic congestion in Mansfield's business districts.

Lack of attention to this subject has likely been responsible for a majority of the traffic tie-ups caused by double-parked trucks and the inclination of some drivers to make unnecessarily long stops—as in related instances of going to lunch or performing personal errands.

Avoidance of customary heavy-traffic hours for routine deliveries, unloading from alleys whenever possible, and reducing necessary double-parking to the shortest possible time, will do much toward solving this difficult problem.

The experiment of hooding some parking meters, so as to allow curb space for trucks at usual delivery times is also worth trying, as motorists are beginning to understand that a hood on a meter indicates the space is reserved.

Things Worth Fighting For

HERE is a confession of faith that deserves to be passed around and preserved. It is a statement from the president of the student body of Stephens college in Columbia, Mo. Asked what democratic values she and the other girls thought were worth fighting for, she replied as follows.

"A democracy to me is a form of political organization where every man, woman and child is an individual personality. As such he is endowed with certain rights that can be taken from him by no majority, no minority group and no institution, whether it be church or state. Among these rights are the right to think, to act, to speak and to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. I received these as a heritage from my father and my father's fathers. They rest upon my shoulders as a responsibility to pass them on to my children and my children's children. If it comes to a choice between passing this heritage on unchanged and my own life, my life is a small forfeit to pay."

It is a good present-day statement of the faith of the fathers, as expressed in Patrick Henry's famous "give me liberty or give me death."

Good Brakes Averted Tragedy

EXPERIENCE continues to rank high as a teacher. For instance, there is the case of a Mansfield woman who was driving on a residential street the other evening when a small child on a scooter coasted out directly in front of her car. The father fell as he attempted to reach the child and both were in the path of the auto.

Quick application of brakes that were in good working order stopped the car instantly and nobody was hurt—or killed.

But—and here's the purpose of this mention—the brakes on that particular car had been defective until a few days before this incident occurred. Then they were checked and adjusted. Had this been neglected for even a short time "defective brakes" would have been responsible for another of the tragedies so frequently attributed to this cause.

Have you had the brakes on YOUR car inspected recently?

Canada's Feminine Troops

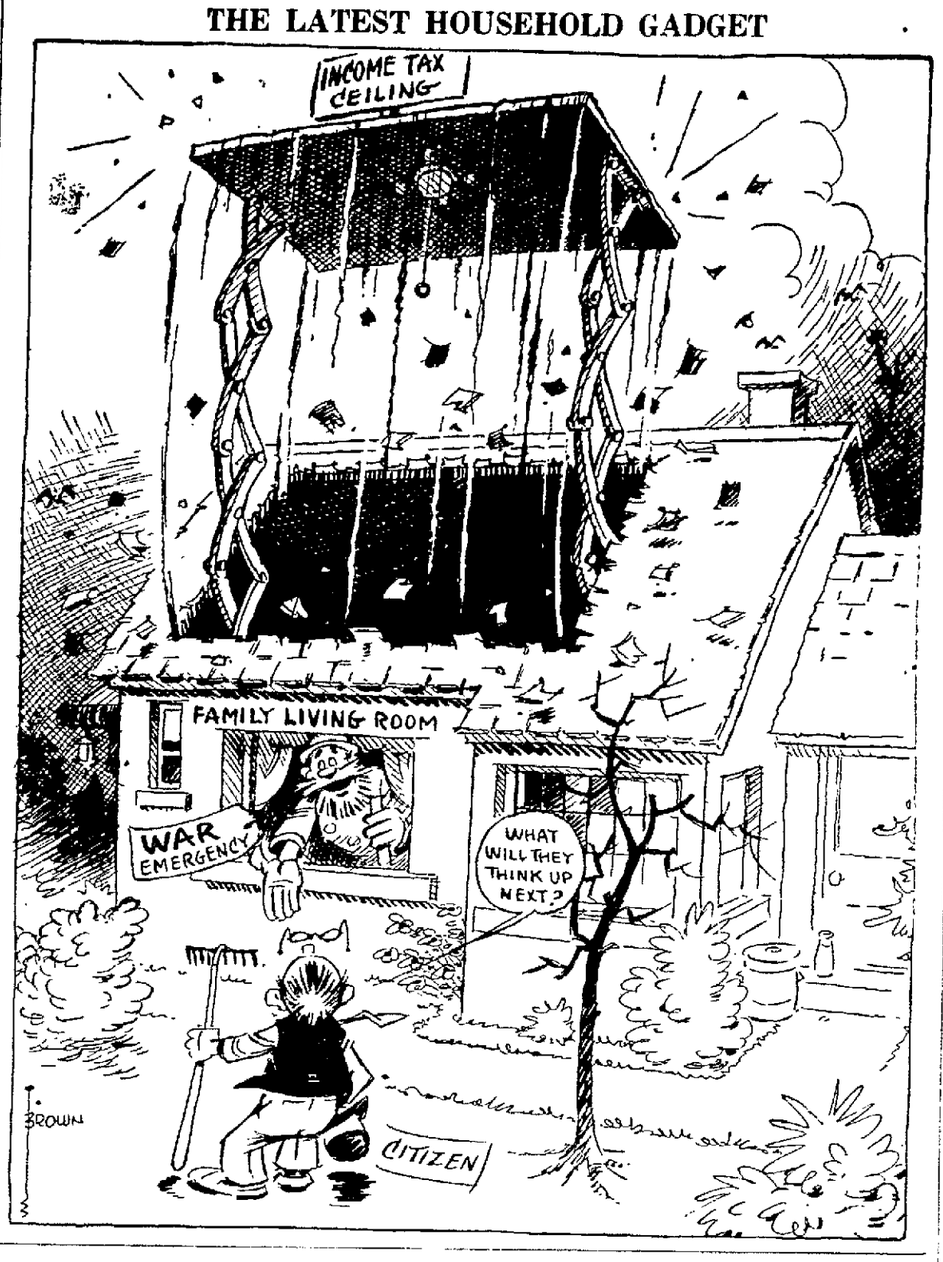
WITH women cutting more and more of a figure in this war, some details from Canada may interest our own girls with military aspirations. The information is fresh from Ottawa.

The new Canadian women's army corps must cut out conspicuous makeup, highly colored nail polish, bracelets, earrings and other trinkets. The only rings allowed are wedding, signet and engagement rings, the last requiring permission to marry obtained from the district commanding officer.

Furthermore, coiffures must be neat and kept well above the collar. Gloves when not worn must be carried in the hand, and not tucked into a belt or shoulder strap. Jackets must not be worn unbuttoned. The haversack replacing the handbag will be worn with a sling over the right shoulder, with a water bottle slung over the left.

This sounds O. K. to a lot of sturdy young Amazons. The uniforms for our own girls in auxiliary services are very good-looking, too.

THE LATEST HOUSEHOLD GADGET



Training Many Airplane Crews

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—By the end of the year the British empire will be turning out trained airplane crews at the rate of 50,000 a year. The actual number of men in 50,000 crews can be only estimated. The British are not telling that, because it would show the most casual German the precise division as between fighters and bombers planned by the British. But the minimum of course is one man for a small fighter plane, and the present maximum is nine for the big bombers.

This training is going on throughout the British empire. Much of it is in Britain, more is in Canada. As has been published, much of the training of British and Canadian pilots is being conducted in the United States.

THE AMAZING fact about this this is not that it is being done, but the magnitude of the program. It is Britain's answer to the question often propounded here—whether the British will be able to man all the planes this country will be sending them after production really gets into its stride.

But if one regards the United States as the ally—eventually—of Britain against Adolf Hitler, the picture becomes even more imposing. The army and navy have separate programs. Already the army has reached the rate of 12,000 crews a year, while the navy has almost reached its maximum, of 10,000 crews a year. But by next year, the army figures, it will be turning out well-trained airplane crews at the rate of 30,000 a year.

Adding the army and navy totals, we can expect this country to be producing 40,000 airplane crews a year, starting in 1942. This does not count the C. P. T. or Civilian Pilots Training organization, nor the training of young men by the private airplane lines to pilot their commercial planes.

Excluding this civilian training, British and American airplane crews will be "coming off the line" at the rate of 90,000 a year sometime early in 1942, which might be calculated to give Hitler and Marshal Goering a little pause!

THIS program, both the British and our own, includes not only the training of pilots, but of all other experts who will be in the crews of fighting planes. It includes machine-gunners, of course, and men skilled in using the small cannon which fighting planes now carry. (Actually most of the one-man fighting planes also carry a cannon as well as machine guns). It includes the bombardiers, trained in the use of the crack new bomb sight. It includes navigators and the course involves a lot of weather forecasting, for weather is of the essence in all airplane movements, whether the planes be fighting or bombing or merely spying out the land.

The British division as to men trained primarily for naval work is not given, but obviously there must be special training in work other than mere navigation for such operations. For example, the business of spotting submarines beneath the surface by their shadows, and a working knowledge of ship types, so that the scouting plane can report to fighting ships or to other planes the presence and strength of enemy surface craft.

The effective part played by a torpedo launched from a plane in crippling the Bismarck indicates that some of these crews will be given training in firing torpedoes from planes. It's a big program, bigger than many of us realize.

Listen World!

They Shall Not Perish!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I SAT and listened to the Queen of England talking the other day.

Frightened little thing . . . gave you a lump in your throat to hear her voice fluttering, at first, trying to get across. Plain enough she wasn't cut out for a radio star. Just a quiet home woman, trying to show the thanks that is in her heart.

Nothing very fancy about anything she said. Nothing shrewd or brilliant or pompous. Only an English wife and mother speaking over the air.

And yet, that very simplicity was the greatest thing she could have given—

For she wasn't pleading for the geniuses—

She wasn't being thankful for the famous—

She wasn't hoping that the rare and wonderful folk should continue to inhabit the world—

She was talking about something you seldom hear mentioned these days. Talking about DIGNITY and KINDNESS.

"HUMAN DIGNITY AND KINDNESS SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THIS EARTH," she cried, and for a long, deep moment the fear went out of her throat and you could feel her spirit flaming.

DIGNITY and KINDNESS . . . the simplest gifts of the soul. Things that the poorest creatures—the most ragged and hungry and homeless creature — might build in his own character. And feel as rich as a king for the building!

DIGNITY AND KINDNESS—THEY SHALL NOT PERISH!

Such a quiet thing to say.

Such a splendid thing to dream!

African Coast Bases for Bombers Are Being Built to Check Hitler

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The public doesn't know it, though Nazi agents do, but the United States is very quietly and efficiently building up a series of strategic bases along the coast of Africa to guard against a Nazi air putsch from Dakar to South America.

First of these bases will be airdromes at Freetown, in the British colony of Sierra Leone, now being developed by Pan American Airways on the airplane ferrying route to Egypt.

Second will be an important airdrome in Liberia, the Afro-American colony just south of Freetown. Equally important, will be a submarine base in Liberia.

The Liberian airdrome is now being built in cooperation with the Firestone Rubber company, which some years ago decided to free itself of the Dutch-British rubber cartel by setting up extensive plantations in Liberia.

Purpose of these bases is to take the place of the U. S. fleet in the South Atlantic. Long ago, U. S. naval strategists figured they could reduce materially the number of U. S. warships around Hawaii and California, if there were enough big bombing planes on the Pacific island bases to patrol the Pacific.

So now U. S. bombing planes operating from the African coast will do the same thing for the South Atlantic in order to guard against Nazi moves from Vichy-dominated Dakar.

The problem of shutting off a Nazi blitz in the South Atlantic is much harder than in the Pacific, due to one factor: distances in the Atlantic are about one-third less than those in the Pacific.

However, these bases at Freetown and Liberia are the best bet the United States has, for long ago the army and navy vetoed a plan to send a force to take Dakar. Strategists figured this would require at least 200,000 men—unless Roosevelt wanted to risk a Narvik.

Note—It should always be remembered that Axis war moves are like a game of chess. Part of Hitler's strategy is to keep the United States enough worried about the Atlantic to station several powerful chessmen (ships) in the Atlantic, thus giving Japan a freer hand in the Pacific. However, we have kept such a large naval force in the Pacific that Japan is worried. This was one topic reported to have been discussed by Hitler and Mussolini last week—how to scare the United States more in the Atlantic, get more U. S. ships shifted from the Pacific, so keep Japan unworried, make sure she remains in the Axis.

Unfinished Job.

THAT reshuffling of defense agencies and personnel cleared up a lot of dragging underbrush and strengthened some glaring weak spots. The result is certain to be more efficient and more coordinated administration.

But the job is far from finished. And privately the president knows it.

Still untouched is the vital need for a single, forceful, directive head of the whole defense program to give it the high-geared drive and initiative it urgently needs.

How soon the president will get around to naming a leader of this caliber he alone knows. But he does know one is badly needed.

Recently, talking to a close friend, the president complained about the failure of defense chiefs to take the initiative and to exercise the powers they have. He contended they have plenty of authority to act if only they would use it.

"Barney Baruch," he said, "had only half their authority, but he went ahead and did things. He didn't run to Wilson every day to ask what to do. Barney took the lead himself. He ascertained what was needed and got it done. But unless I tell my defense men what to do, it's not done.

"They claim it's because they haven't the authority. That's bosh. They've got all the authority they need. What they lack is initiative. They are excellent men, sincere, able and patriotic. But they are executors and not leaders. Unless they are told specifically what to do, nothing happens."

The friend agreed heartily with the president and then quietly remarked, "What about Bill Douglas?"

The president made no direct reply to the deft question. But he waxed enthusiastic about the hard-hitting young supreme court justice, relating how, when newly appointed chairman of the SEC during the 1937 stock market crash, Douglas had beard-ed Wall Street and forced a thorough housecleaning of the New York Stock Exchange.

Note—Inner administrationites, who played a big part in last week's OPM shakeup, have long advocated assembling all agencies, plus army and navy chasing authorities, within department, to be known Department of Supply and by a new cabinet member, choice for this job is Doug

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—You are looking at Dacita, of whom the public is becoming increasingly aware. Her father, a scientist, a research expert in the study of malaria on the island of Puerto Rico, wanted her to study medicine. So she obtained her bachelor's degrees from the U. of P. R. and came to America for her master's degree—but instead she met Ned Wayburn and became a dancer.

How does she get that sweeping, gliding motion into what appears to be West Indian congas and rhumbas? . . . She studied Javanese dancing . . . "I handle the moracas with a wide sweep," she tells you between appearances at the Rainbow Room. There are tricks of oriental poise and serenity which she incorporates into her dancing. These differ from Cuban technique, but they blend beautifully.

DACITA is about 23. She is five, five. Even when she was a kid in short dresses she became interested in dancing because one of the family cooks was a bomba expert . . . She wouldn't dance the bomba unless she was having a little nip . . . White people aren't supposed to see the real bomba; it has a religious significance.

"She was fat but graceful," explains Dacita, "and she had the straightest back I ever saw; it was from her that I first thought of dancing and began to analyze thumbas and congas. We also had an old servant who was 104 years old. He knew all the arias from all the operas and he used to sing them to me. He never wore shoes in his life and his teeth all were perfect. He could roast a pig better than anyone in the islands and everybody wanted to borrow him. He took three generations of our family to the opera."

AFTER Dacita decided that maybe dancing was more fun than ministering to human ills, she danced through most of the haunts of the West Indies, the Bahamas and Florida. She also became a model and at the same time studied voice . . . "I want to get out on that floor and sing," she tells you in husky accents. . . . "Most Spanish people want either to sing or dance . . . I want to do both."

Dacita tells me she is pure Spanish. She says her people came out to Puerto Rico several generations ago under a system that, she feels, may have contributed to the decline of Spain as a world power.

"What system was that?"

"Paid substitutes," she replied. "When rich young men were called for military service, they sent paid substitutes and then left for the islands."

She now has been in New York for three years. One of her first experiences here was on Broadway in the short-lived revue "Crazy with the Heat." . . . But 1941 seems to be the year she has been waiting for . . . Everything this year, so far, has been good. "Look," says Dacita, "I keep my fingers crossed—both hands, same time."

A Farmer's Diary

In a Crow's Nest

—By CALVIN A. BY

HIGH in a tall hickory tree on a steep hillside near our valley, I saw a crow's nest. Sticks larger than my thumb crisscrossed above the crotch where three large branches meet. Upon these a thick mat of leaves is woven.

The circumference is about as great as a farmer's broad brimmed straw hat and the depression in the middle is like the inverted crown. Leaves near the center appear to be cemented with clay brought from a nearby pond.

As I stood beneath, a gust of wind blew from the north and swayed the treetop heavily, but the rugged nest rode as securely as if it were bolted down. There, I thought, is skill and utility that seem almost human.

LAST June I hunted wild raspberries all through this wooded valley. When I first discovered it, I thought the nest abandoned. There were no signs of life, and the caw, caw of the sable noisy tribe came from another slope where barkless chestnut branches topped the living oaks and maples.

A second time I came and then I thought I saw a crow slide off through the tree and disappear without a sound. The voice of other crows in conference, came still from the other slope. My curiosity stirred, and I climbed an oak that stood higher on the bank, and finally reached a place where I could see into the nest.

A mother crow was sitting. Her black feathers glistened in the moving flecks of sunlight. Her head was drawn in low and her body filled the hollow space and made the top seem even. She ignored my presence, although she must have known that I was there. Perhaps she thought the gulf impassable between us.

To scare her off—for I much desired to see the eggs, after so much energy expended in climbing—I threw some odd shaped pebbles I happened to have in my pocket, and some bits of bark. The first shot rattled through the leaves, the second grazed her tail, the third hit squarely at the base of her and she stood up, hissing, flew quietly through the tops and away.

Then I had the rare delig looking for the first time i life, on a crow's nest inhabit it should be, by five young The family seemed bereft, b five fuzzy babies held their high and lolled their little to back and forth like clappe inverted bells. I knew the er bird would soon return the little ones seemed to p even firmer faith. Satisfi climbed down and went hon

Letter Written By Washington In 1781 Discovered

DETROIT, Mich. —(INS)— A letter written by George Washington on his birthday in 1781 when the American colonies were in the midst of their struggle for independence, has been discovered by Dr. Andre Delattre, professor of French at Wayne university.

Dr. Delattre came upon the letter last summer while looking through the papers of Jean-Gabriel Eynard, diplomat and autograph collector of over 100 years ago in the library of Geneva, Switzerland.

Written in Washington's own hand, the letter was addressed to Col. Elias Dayton, an intelligence officer in a camp on the Hudson river. In four concise sentences, Dayton was instructed about obtaining information of the threatened British advances against the river posts which were weakened by the removal of Lafayette's forces to Virginia.

SLIPS AT 80

VISALIA, Calif. — (U.P.) — Theo Laurel, 80-year-old inmate of an old people's home, told Police Judge Gareth W. Houk he had been in a driver's seat on the temperance wagon for years and years until a friend told him a pint of rye would cure a cold.

"It's too late to begin curing colds that way now," Houk said, "and as you've never drank before and never were arrested I'll suspend a three-day jail sentence."

VOLUME GIVES NEW SLANT ON FRENCH PEOPLE

'France Speaking' Describes Those Who Have Refused To Bow To Hitler.

A new slant on the peoples of Europe is afforded by Robert de Saint Jean in his new book, "France Speaking," now available at Mansfield Public Library.

Termed by Andre Maurois, "the best journalist of his generation," the author writes of the liberty-loving average people of his generation who have not surrendered to Hitler.

Told fearlessly and frankly the book was translated from the French by Anne Green.

"Bird In the Wilderness," another novel by Vincent Sheean, recreates the fateful days of 1917 and interprets what they meant to one sensitive and idealistic high school boy with a German mother.

THE HARP AND THE BLADE by John Myers is a romantic novel of adventure in the time of thieves and fortified abbeys, invading Danes and warring Franks in 10th century France. The tale is told by Finnian, a gay Irish minstrel, who became involved in the affairs of his friend and compatriot, Conan, who has cast his lot on the side of decency against the treacherous Count Chilbert and his gangster followers.

ANOTHER MORNING by Wessel Smitter is a novel of modern pioneers—the story of a family, members of a small group of home-steaders who several years ago undertook to build a new life in Alaska. They persevered in spite of obstacles and, in the end, were able to face the future with fresh hope and a courage born of adversity.

OTHER FICTION: BEST SHORT STORIES OF 1941 by O'Brien; THE SHARKSKIN BOOK by Keeler; LAW AND ORDER ON HALFDAY CREEK by Hendryx.

THE SPANISH ADVENTURES OF WASHINGTON IRVING is a delightful chronicle of Washington Irving's pleasant, busy years in Spain by Claude G. Bowers, an accomplished biographer who, almost 100 years after Irving, held the same position—that of ambassador to Spain. It was during his residence there that Irving turned to serious writing, and especially to Spanish history, and this book reveals how the country and the people appealed to him.

ESKIMOLAND SPEAKS by William Van Valin, the man who headed the John Wanamaker expedition to the Arctic, is a presentation of the life of the Eskimo of Arctic Alaska in intimate detail. Van Valin lived among the Eskimos and mingled with them freely in their activities of work and play. Well illustrated with photographs.

HOOSIER by Heath Bowman is an informal history of the state of Indiana, beginning with a chapter on the origin of the word Hoosier, and stressing throughout the nature and achievements of the men who made the state and name famous. Photographs by the author.

OTHER NON-FICTION. LET'S MAKE A GIFT by Spears; IT'S FUN TO BUILD THINGS by Price; PARENTHOOD IN A DEMOCRACY by Bowman & Lighty; VOCATIONAL MATHEMATICS vol. Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Children's stories about America when the country was young are told in two new books for young readers just received at the Mansfield Public Library. One is a boys' story and the other is a story of the flag.

SONS OF LIBERTY, by Gertrude Robinson—David was only a youngster of nine when an Indian boy his own age rescued him during a blizzard from an Indian attack. These two boys pledged themselves to brotherhood. From that time on David needed brothers among both Indian and white men, to help him to stand for the things he thought were right. He took his place among those who helped to make the colonies strong enough to gain their freedom.

OUR FLAG, by John Harbourt—During the struggle for freedom the first flags were chosen, and about a year after the Declaration of Independence, the design for our present flag was chosen. The incidents which caused the flag to change are described in this illustrated book.

Draft Officials Send Out Alarm For Jesse James

DILLON, Mont. —(INS)— Peace officers of the west are again hunting Jesse James!

Historians, who are confirmed believers in the adage that "history repeats itself," today nodded their heads in vigorous affirmation when they learned that the "feds" are once more seeking one Jesse James.

Three quarters of a century or so ago every post office and roadside hamlet offered rewards for the apprehension of James, the ex-soldier, who robbed trains and stage coaches.

Selective service officials disclosed that Jesse James of Dillon registered for the draft last Oct. 16, and was issued number 1097. His local board mailed out his questionnaire last week, and it was returned today marked "address unknown." So the word went out to officers to "pick up Jesse James"

GREED FATAL TO TROUT

ALBANY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Game protectors found a dead trout 31½ inches long with a round stone caught in the fish's mouth. Conservation men wonder if the trout drowned or choked to death.

THEATERS

Hilarious Farce.

"Charley's Aunt," the hilarious farce that is said to have been performed more times than any other play with the exception of "Hamlet," reaches the Ohio screen Saturday with Jack Benny in the title role. Jack plays a friendly fellow who helps out two college pals by masquerading as a friend's aunt. When the real aunt comes on the scene complications start. Kay Francis plays the aunt and the cast includes James Ellison, Reginald Owen and Arleen Whelen. Benny plays the rols in curls, satins and laces but retains his cigar as a prop.

Dynamic Story.

George Raft, Marlene Dietrich and Edward G. Robinson join forces in "Manpower," the dynamic story dealing with Pacific coast high tension linemen and dance hall hostesses, opening Saturday at the Madison. Raft and Robinson are shown as pals on a dangerous job whose even tenor of existence is upset by Marlene Dietrich in the role of a dance hall hostess. The action builds up when the girl marries Robinson and then discovers that it is the other man she loves. Walter Catlett, Eve Arden and Barton MacLane are in the cast. "Charlie Chan in Rio," featuring Sidney Toler, is the companion feature.

Mystery Thriller.

"The Black Cat," mystery thriller, is showing at the Ritz with Basil Rathbone, Hugh Herbert, Bela Lugosi and Brod Crawford topping the cast. Johnny Mack Brown is featured in "Boss of Bullion City," western adventure film, that shares the bill.

He assumes the identity of "Shotgun Cassidy," a western muscle man connected with Tombstone gangsters, to accomplish his purpose and meets up with romance in the person of Elyse Knox. George "Gabby" Hayes and Hal Taliaferro are in the picture. "City of Missing Girls," the co-attraction, exposes the shady talent academies, and features Astrid Allwyn, H. B. Warner and John Archer.

Thrilling Adventure.

The courageous exploits of the indomitable broadcasters who risk death daily to get the truth to their enslaved countrymen are pictured in "The Voices in the Night," co-starring Clive Brook and Diana Wynyard at the Majestic. Brook plays the man sponsible for the undergr station, a prominent phys who sickens at the disaster ar him. Miss Wynyard is cast a wife who believes in the ph ophy that sustains the reig terror. Anthony Asquith, the who made "Pygmalion," dire the picture. "Lone Rider bushed," with George Husto the second feature.

TURNED DOWN

URBANA, Ill.—(U.P.)—Judge Ben F. Anderson has had witnesses of all kinds in his court, he said, but he drew the line at a human skeleton.

Attorneys for two plaintiffs in a personal injury suit asked to bring the skeleton into the courtroom to point out certain locations of injuries allegedly suffered by the plaintiffs in an automobile accident.

Anderson rejected the suggestion in favor of X-ray photographs taken after the accident.

CHAPTER XXIII

One cold February day Hill took Kenny to the hospital to see his mother. Dr. Malcolm would not give his consent before, fearing the excitement would be too much for April.

Because Kenny was going to be in his father's car, Cherry had dressed him in corduroy overalls and the new leather trimmed zipper jacket Hill had bought for him. The new costume made him look inches taller, together with the fact that he was losing his baby plumpness and beginning to get long legged and boyish.

April's head was turned toward the door when Kenny and Hill appeared, because she had been waiting impatiently for them to arrive. Kenny had been told by his father that he must be quiet because his mother had been very ill. When April held out her arms to her son he ran to her wordlessly, and she gathered him to her with a little sob of joy.

"Oh, darling!" she choked, "how you've grown! Why you're not a baby at all any more, are you?"

Kenny did not answer, but clung to her, and she knew he was trying very hard not to cry. She kissed him over and over again, while Hill stood watching the scene with his own eyes blurred.

Suddenly Kenny released his mother, remembering his father was there too, and pulling away he ran and took Hill's hand and said in his bird like voice:

"Daddy is here too, Mommy! See, Daddy came to see you too!"

"Hello, Hill," April held out her hand, her eyes still filled with tears. "How are you?"

* * *

Hill went to her and bent to take her outstretched hand. He could not speak. Kenny looked from his father to his mother with worried, pleading eyes and then he asked in a little embarrassed voice:

"Can't you kiss Daddy because we divorced him, Mommy? Can't you?"

"April reached up and put her arms around Hill and he kissed her tenderly on the pale cheek. She kissed his brow and said with an effort to be gay:

"Of course I can kiss Daddy, and he can kiss me, see?"

Kenny's mouth parted in a wide relieved grin and April saw the two front teeth he had lost while she was in the hospital.

"Oh, darling," she laughed shakily, "How different you look without your teeth!"

"They're coming back in again, Mommy," Kenny opened his mouth and pointed to two small white points peeping through. "But they're not gold. Isn't that too bad? Hy'cinthe said if I was a very good boy and kept my dirty fingers out of my mouth, I'd get gold ones. But I guess she just didn't know what she was talking about."

"Maybe," Hill smiled, sitting down in the chair beside the bed and taking Kenny on his lap," you didn't keep your dirty fingers out of your mouth. Did you ever think of that?"

The chair was close enough to the bed so Kenny could lean over and put his head close to his mother's face. He caressed her tenderly, patting her haid and snuggling his own pink face close to hers.

"I've missed you, Mommy," Kenny told her, his chin quivering. "Very much. Hy'cinthe said you had gone on a personal appearer tour so people could see how beautiful you are. But I knew something was wrong because Cherry and Aunt Gay and Hy'cinthe cried. Daddy told me about your accident today. Does it hurt you very much, Mommy?"

"Oh, no," April assured the worried child quickly. "They're just keeping me here to rest. My leg was hurt but it's going to be fine in a little while. And I'll be home good as new. You'll see."

Hill looked away so that April could not see the fear in his eyes. How would she take it he wondered when she learned the doctors believed she would never walk again?

April was surprised and greatly moved at the change in Hill. He was pounds thinner, and his face was drawn and pale. She had never seen him look anything but rugged and in the best of health.

"Have you been eating too many eggs again, Daddy?" she asked, smiling the charming maternal smile that Hill had always loved so much. "You're looking a little yellow around the gills again."

Hill shook his blond head grinning feebly. "No, my dear. It isn't ham and eggs this time. And it isn't anything I drank."

Between the lines April read what he was trying to tell her, that he had been worried. Hill stirred restlessly.

"I guess you understand without my telling you, darling, how sorry I am that you've had to go through all of this. Don't let the fact that I've stayed away fool you."

"Of course I won't, Hill," she said. "I knew you weren't staying away from the hospital because you were indifferent. I understood."

Kenny looked from his mother to his father with large, inquiring eyes and then he smiled:

"You and Daddy are very good friends, aren't you, Mommy? We can still be good friends even if we did deevorce, Daddy, can't we? Daddy and I are awful good friends. We play golf and go to the movies and Daddy helps me with my home work. Aren't we good friends, Daddy?"

Hill said, embarrassed: "You just bet we're good friends, son. We're better than that. We're pals."

April did wish there were some way she could stop Kenny from talking about the way "they" had divorced daddy. But she felt she couldn't bring the subject up at that moment. Kenny thought they had both divorced his father because Hill no longer lived with them. It wouldn't be easy to explain and make him understand.

"I'm so glad," she smiled then, "that you and Daddy have been together so much. I know you've been having wonderful times. Tell Mommy all about it."

Kenny laughed delightedly: "Daddy is really teaching me how to play golf, Mommy. I got some new golf sticks, and we practice down on the shuffler board court. Don't we, Daddy?"

"We certainly do, son," his father said. "And when the weather gets nice and you don't have to go to school you're going to start taking regular golf lessons. I'll make a golf prodigy out of you yet."

"What's a progidy?"

"A champ. You can take lessons at my golf school when it opens.

April said: "Your golf school?"

Hill nodded. "Hasn't anyone told you I'm going into business? I'm turning pro. I've raised some capital and I'm opening a golf club and school on the Stiller estate at Great Neck. We'll be open in a few weeks now. Just as soon as the weather is right."

"How nice!" April exclaimed. "I think that's wonderful!"

Hill said seriously: "Yes, it's been keeping me pretty busy. I haven't had much time for anything else. I've been getting members lined up, and scouting around looking for pupils. It's quite a job getting the building set. I'm a hard working man."

April's face mirrored both astonishment and pleasure. Kent went on:

"There'll be money in it, I think. I'm splitting fifty-fifty with my backers. They have influence, too, and I can't see how we can lose. It's to be called the Kent Hillyer School of Golf. They put up the money and use my name for bait. I do the work!"

April said excitedly:

"Why Hill, that's the best news I've ever heard. How grand that you're to have a business of your own. And something you love to do. Oh, I do wish you luck."

Hill smiled crookedly: "Thanks, darling. If I'd had any brains I'd have started the thing when we first came to New York."

Suddenly April's expression changed. She said suspiciously: "Drusilla is backing you, I suppose."

Hill looked annoyed, then he smiled uncertainly:

"No. Dru doesn't even know about it. It's a doctor who doesn't want his name used."

Hill couldn't tell April that it was Dr. Malcolm because it would entail a lot of explaining which he wasn't in a position to do. If he did, April would find out that he was paying her bills at the hospital.

April laughed apologetically:

"Oh, forgive me, Hill. I shouldn't have said that. I guess it was the green-eyed monster rearing it's ugly head. Of course I might have known better than that. You do forgive me?"

Hill nodded; "I forgive you. Your jealousy flatters my ego. I rather like it."

April asked then: "If you haven't told Dru about the golf school I presume you're not married yet?"

Kenny had climbed down and was looking out the window at the traffic below. He did not hear his mother's question. Hill's jaw hardened.

"No," he said shortly. "I'm not married."

"We won't talk about it," April said soothingly. "I just wondered."

A little later April's day nurse came to the door. "I'm sorry," she smiled, "but I'm afraid we'll have to send the family home. We can't let Miss Lind get too tired."

Kenny turned from the window. "Miss Lind is my Aunt Cherry," he said. "And she isn't here. My Mommy's name is Mrs. Hillyer. I guess you made a mistake."

The nurse smiled. "Oh, pardon me. I guess I did. Well, Mrs. Hillyer it's time for an alcohol rub and a bath."

Hill started to help Kenny with his zipper jacket but he said resentfully:

"I'm no sissy, Daddy! Nobody has to dress me. I guess you forget I'm a big boy."

Hill grinned: "Yes, I guess I do, son. You'll soon be as big as I am."

Kenny offered innocently: "Aunt Cherry is afraid I'm going to look like you Daddy. And do you know I don't think she likes you very much. She said 'for heavens sake, Hy'cinthe, the little goon looks more like that big dope ever' day.' A big dope isn't very nice, is it, Mommy?"

April's face colored. The nurse turned and busied herself at a table. Hill grinned uncertainly. April held Kenny close, trying not to show how hard it was to part from him after such a little while. She whispered close in his ear:

"Take very good care of Daddy, darling. That's our secret. And don't you pay any attention to what Aunt Cherry says about Daddy. He's our best friend, isn't he?"

Kenny nodded swiftly. Then he whispered: "Aunt Cherry is a very bad girl. Marfy the girl next door said so."

County General Fund Balance Down To $5,895.

Richland county had more than $600,000 in tax money in its treasury today, but the county's operating fund balance had dropped to $5,895, lowest mark in recent months.

The county's operating expenses, totaling $30,038 last month, were approximately five times greater than the revenue which amounted to $6,091, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe's financial report showed.

The auditor said his office will begin distributing the second-half tax money in a few days. So far, only the Mansfield schools have had to draw an advance settlement against the tax receipts. They were allocated $50,000.

It is expected, however, that the county will have to get an advance allocation of tax funds to meet its bills before the regular settlement is completed. The report listed $609,908 in undivided tax receipts.

Funds for the expedition will be financed from a sum raised by the alumni in honor of Dr. Marion Edwards Park, president of the college.

Maneuvers Are Amusing: 2

Army Road's Rocky for Romance

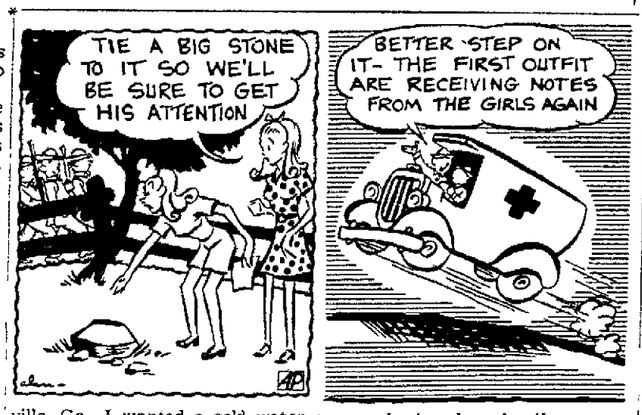
By JOHN GROVER
(AP Feature Service Writer)

LAUREL, Miss.—Uncle Sam's soldiers are catching more woo than they're pitching.

Riding with the 62nd brigade from Florida to Louisiana, it's easy to see that Miss America is definitely daffy about uniforms. What's more, she isn't sitting demurely home with her embroidery, waiting for romance. She goes and gets it.

You don't believe it? Read on.

One girl puts her chosen soldier boy in a hospital at Waynesboro, Miss. She throws a note with her name and address into his truck. Trouble is, she'd tied it to a rock, and it makes him the maneuver's first casualty.



TIE A BIG STONE TO IT SO WE'LL BE SURE TO GET HIS ATTENTION
BETTER STEP ON IT- THE FIRST OUTFIT ARE RECEIVING NOTES FROM THE GIRLS AGAIN

That isn't an isolated instance. Outside Donalsonville, Ga., I get a flash of a missile heading our way. Prudently, I duck. It catches Maj. Harold Nathan, knocking off his glasses. It's another note, tucked in a booklet.

The major and I, baldheads both, can't take credit for the romantic assault. The girl obviously meant it for Pvt. Nick Rizzo, the major's clerk, riding in front. Handsome Nick has a lush head of curly hair, so we pass the note to him in middle-aged resignation.

College girls in Mississippi toss just as many notes as mill-workers in Alabama. The colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady have the same idea about the army.

I ask Maj. Nathan about this. Isn't it unusual?

"Just better feeling between 1941 soldiers and 1941 civilians," he says. "Any veteran can remember when an army visit was popular as a skunk on a picnic. The civilian attitude has changed plenty in the past 18 months. They're friendly now."

He points out instances. Citizens at every overnight stop arrange entertainment for the 62nd. Thomasville, Ga., Andalusia, Ala., Laurel all have big street dances. American Legionnaires set up canteens. Fleets of cars take the boys around town.

Little towns, where the outfit only stops five minutes, if at all, have flags and "welcome" signs out. Boy Scouts snap to attention as the column goes by. At Enterprise, Ala., it's typical. Townspeople give every boy in the column a bag of boiled peanuts. (They boil new-crop peanuts there. Take the word of a dam-yankee reporter that they're swell.)

I talk with local policemen, thinking I'll get the dope on army hell-raising.

"These kids behave. Better than civilians the same age. Discipline's the answer. Folks were dubious at first about having an army on their hands. Now they're glad to have the boys stop."

That's the consensus. They prove it. At Andalusia, the MP's didn't arrest a single soldier for breaking the 11 p. m. back-to-camp curfew. Not a single case of drunkenness reported.

You see other instances of civilian goodfellowship. In Thomasville, Ga., I wanted a cold watermelon for the mess. No grocery had 'em on ice. I called Jim Keaton, ice plant executive. He didn't know me from Adam. No, they didn't have 'em to sell, but he'd fix me up. Insisted I take five.

"Nobody in Georgia eats less'n half a melon at a sitting," he explained.

"That's the way it goes Townsfolk are 99 44/100 friendly.

Immorality? Vice? Army doctors say it's largely exaggerated poppycock. Venereal disease is far less in the army than in comparable civilian age groups.

"Take a walk downtown and see for yourself," an army doctor advises. "If you don't find 250 at the dance with decent girls for every one you see going up to that brothel—and we know about it—I'll buy you a hat. I'll bet you another hat I can show you ten drinking sodas for every one taking liquor aboard. Go see for yourself."

I did and he's right.

Credit—Or Blame—Goes To Turks For Women's Slack Fad

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — The Turks should get the ultimate credit—or blame — for American women wearing slacks today, according to Mrs. Mary Brooks Picken, American dress designer.

Mrs. Picken told the 34th annual convention of the American Home Economics association that if it hadn't been for the balloon-like trousers of the Turks, Mrs. Amelia Jenks Bloomer might never have got the idea for the bloomer — forerunner of modern slacks.

"The United States has been famous for centuries for its ability to copy fashions," Mrs. Picken declared. "From the days of the Clipper-ship, dolls that women passed from hand to hand so that they and their seamstresses could copy the dresses, we have been famous for our ability to take other people's ideas and interpret them creditably, often with improvement."

Besides the bloomer and slacks, Americans have created the union suit, health shoes and galoshes, she said.

"Although Hollywood dress designers have an important role in influencing fads both in hairstyles and dress fashions, no area has a monopoly on creation in this country," she said. "Nelly Don of Kansas City invented the bungalow apron; Kiviette, a New York fashion designer, created the play suit and the lounging pajama, and Mary Lewis of New York City invented the skirtmaker dress, a tailored type garment more practical than a separate shirtwaist and more feminine than a man's shirt.

"Since the fall of France, the responsibility for creating new fashions has shifted to the United States and has caught America with a deplorable lack of contemporary creative geniuses.

"Creative designers are so rare that our government should subsidize them, and all manufacturers who live off their genius should be taxed for the inspiration their copyists gain from creative artists."

FLOUTS SOUTH

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(U.P.)—The Birmingham, Ala., salesman who took his bride-to-be to the county clerk's office here to obtain a marriage license surely must have believed that there's nothing like starting a wife out right.

When the license was filled out the deputy clerk demanded a dollar and a half. Turning to his future mate the salesman said, "Pay the man, sugar."

Then to onlookers he said: "Boy, am I starting her off right?"

DEER PERIL MOTORISTS

NEWBERRY, Mich.—(U.P.)—State conservation department reports show that more than 160 deer were killed on Michigan highways during one month. However, deer were not the only victims of the collisions with motorists—one accident, at least, resulted in death to the driver as well.

RATIONS WATER

SELLERSVILLE, Pa.—(U.P.)—A system of rationing water has been put into effect in Sellersville so that a factory making defense products can have a sufficient water supply.

A prolonged drought caused the borough's water supply basin to recede nearly 2 feet in a month. Household use of water was restricted so that the U. S. Gauge Co., could obtain the 235,000 gallons it needs daily. The company makes gauges for airplanes, submarines and ships.

FAMILY SERVES CHURCH

DANSVILLE, N. Y.—(U.P.)—When the Rev. Dennis Walter Hickey was ordained recently as a Roman Catholic priest he became the 12th family member in two generations to serve church. Father Hickey was ceded by five brothers who came priests and six sisters, nuns. A cousin also was ord a priest a short time ago.

FELT LIKE SUFFOCATING WHEN GAS IN STOMACH GOT SO BAD

Canton lady describes how Vendol came to rescue by giving satisfying laxative action then the symptoms of acid indigestion, sour stomach, biliousness and dizzy feelings due to constipation disappeared.

MRS. MILDRED BAUM
Canton Resident

No doubt you know people who have taken Vendol. Ask them what they think of it. Like many others, they will report outstanding merits of this reliable medicine. For instance, Mrs. Mildred Baum of 1218 W. Tuscarawas street says: "Eating should be a pleasure, but when I'm constipated it becomes only a routine duty, because then after every meal I suffer symptoms of an upset stomach which churns with hot, sour, fermenting food, burns fiercely, and generates so much gas that I feel tight and bloated, and almost as though I will suffocate or choke from a lump in my throat, due to the constipation.

"At other times when the constipation is bad I can hardly sleep from the aching pains in the muscles of my arms, neck, shoulders, and from my knees down to my ankles, due to the constipation and need of a mild diuretic action on my kidneys.

"Vendol gives me the nicest, most satisfying, temporary relief from constipation, and when I get this relief I never suffer from any of those annoying symptoms which make me so miserable. My advice to others is to give Vendol a trial, too."

When you suffer from the same cause, take Vendol, a medicine with 17 years' reputation for helping men and women who praise it by the thousands, and say it is the best compound they ever tried. Vendol is a satisfying laxative for the bowels, carminative for the stomach, and a mild diuretic for the kidneys. Give Vendol a trial today. All druggists sell it. Get the larger size bottles which save you money.

Perhaps You Remember

THIS IS NOT the first time that you have called upon Dodge automotive plants and men to meet a National Emergency. You probably remember that you called them to the colors once before; that you found their service good; that their dependability was not a catch-word, but a watch-word, in France and on the training fields at home, for the highest mechanical excellence.

Now again you have called Dodge to the National Defense. And Dodge has swiftly answered. Already many thousands of its highly trained men have been transferred from the work of building motorcars to the more urgent and crucial tasks of building army trucks, tanks, guns and airplane assemblies. Again Dodge is throwing its great industrial weight into your program of Defense. And, as you require, Dodge will again remain a defense force, with every ounce of its energy, every inch of the way.

You May Also Recall

You may clearly remember that the first time you called on Dodge for aid in National Defense, its motorcars were reaching the very peak of their first young success. Then suddenly, remember, there were fewer of them because there were fewer men to make them, and less material to make them with. Perhaps you also remember that it was these fewer Dodge cars, and the qualities inherent in them, that helped to lay the lasting foundation for a world-wide reputation for Dependability.

Later—A Quarter Century

Now again Dodge moves full speed ahead in the service of the Government of the United States. Dodge does this with full knowledge of its duty and full confidence in your own respect for the spirit that is Dodge. These cars will, of course, always remain at their finest. You may approach the purchase of your own new Dodge with complete confidence in its enduring value,—its ability to serve you extremely well for even more years than you would normally choose to drive it. It is a firm and final fact that these are the finest cars that Dodge has ever built.

There can be no curtailment of Dodge quality . . . no substitute for Dodge Dependability.

MARTHA HANSBERGER BECOMES BRIDE HERE

Only the Immediate Families Witness Candlelight Service Solemnized for Miss Hansberger and Joseph Castner of Marion.

MR. AND MRS. LOREN A. HANSBERGER, 710 Virginia avenue, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Martha Helen, to Joseph E. Castner, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Castner of Marion. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer performed the single ring ceremony before the candlelit altar of the First Lutheran church at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening in the prescence of the immediate families.

For her wedding the bride was attired in a street length frock of Defense blue wool with brown accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of Talisman roses. Attending Miss Hansberger was her sister, Barbara. She was attired in a beige wool frock with Antique brown accessories and wore a corsage of roses. John P. Castner, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Luncheon was served buffet style from a long table decorated with garden flowers. Attractive flower arrangements were used throughout the house.

After a trip through Michigan the couple will reside in Marion where Mr. Castner is associated with the Universal Cooler corporation. Out-of-town guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. John P. Castner, Columbus, Mrs. Bernice Craig, Akron, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warner of Marion.

Mrs. Constance Speaks at First Association Meet

Mrs. George Constance, missionary on furlough from Columbia, South America, was the guest speaker at the first fall meeting of the Women's Association of the First Congregational church Thursday at the church. She gave an interesting talk on her work to the 35 members in attendance. Mrs. C. W. Jelliff conducted the devotional period. Plans were made for a luncheon meeting to be held Oct. 1.

Mrs. John Graham was chairman of the hostesses, Mrs. E. W. Dann, Mrs. J. C. Lewis, Mrs. George Mead, Mrs. W. H. McClennan and Mrs. David Feiser. Tea was served from a long table dainty with bouquets of garden flowers. During the social hour plans for the coming season's programs were discussed.

Alexis Blue Will Be New Fall Shade

By ORRY-KELLY

Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing for International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD—There's something in being known as the "perfect technicolor beauty" but few girls have rated this flattering appelation. When they do it's news to be reported. Warner Bros. are calling their latest "find," Alexis Smith, "a girl with flawless coloring for this brilliant media" which is yet comparatively new to the screen. Many girls, though beautiful from every angle, are not at their best in the artificial "natural" colors that are technicolor's.

But it seems that Miss Smith, like Olivia de Havilland, who has always been considered the most beautiful technicolor star in pictures, has just enough natural tint in her light skin, just enough red in her blond hair, and just enough green in her blue eyes to make her an outstanding bet for these highly brilliant films. You'll find her breathtakingly beautiful in "Navy Blues."

But, of course, we have to put in our bid for some share of making these girls so lovely. The clothes they wear are of prime importance. If you'll recall some of Olivia's technicolor films you'll remember that she wore the softest shades of the brightest colors. No mousy grays or lifeless browns, but rose and tomato shades stemming from the headiest scarlet. Greens and yellows, and white because white photographs white and is Olivia's "color" at any time.

Alexis will wear a great deal of lively blue in her first appearance role—with Errol Flynn.

A suit without a blouse is important in her wardrobe because a suit without a blouse is so new in the suit word. To date we've done them only in the lightest materials, preferably crepe, and with a semi-tailored line. This one is a cross between poudre and turquoise crepe which we're calling "Alexis blue" to introduce it. The suit with medium length jacket has wide lapels which cross to form a very low V-shaped neckline and shows a double peplum which fits over the hips instead of flaring in the usual manner of peplums. No jewelry breaks the tailored line. In place of clip or pin Alexis wears a large white water lily on a lapel. Her hat is in white toya with umbrella brim and all accessories are white with a narrow brown calf stripe matching the trim on white pumps.

Mushrooms, fresh or canned—add a savory goodness to leftover fish meat or fowl. Mix into a tomato sauce and serve atop boiled rice, macaroni, or needles.

Elect Officers At Soroity Meet Thursday

Miss Eleanor Piper will serve as president of Gamma Beta Gamma sorority as a result of the election held Thursday evening. Members of the group held their first meeting of the season at the home of Miss An Shadwell, Sturges avenue. Other officers named were Miss Shadwell, secretary and Miss Etabel Hunter, treasurer.

Miss Ann Parsons conducted business session. Games and contests were diversions of the evening. Prizes were won by Miss Dorothy Hainer and Miss Hunter. Luncheon was served buffet style at the close of the evening from a long table decorated with garden flowers. The next meeting will be held Sept. 18 at the home of the Misses Eloise and Eleanor Piper, North Mulberry street.

Heads Study Club

Mrs. John H. Finefrock, 766 Park avenue west, will assume the duties of president for the Victorian club for the coming year. One of the first study groups in Mansfield the club was organized in 1896. Activities of the club this year will begin on Oct. 20 with a commonwealth luncheon at 1 o'clock at the Mansfield Leland hotel.

Auxiliary Holds Guest Party at Leland Hotel

To officially launch the fall season of meetings for the Women's auxiliary to the Richland County Medical society was the guest party held last evening. Members entertained their husbands with a dinner and program at the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Louis T. Schaefer was the guest speaker, giving a talk on nutrition. His topic was "Are You Fed or Full?"

The group was seated at a large U-shaped table attractively decorated with unusual floral arrangements. A large centerpiece of white lilies centered the speaker's table and at the others were blue and pink flowers. Mrs. Lincoln Fisher, president of the auxiliary, conducted a brief business session.

The next meeting of the club will be held Oct. 6 at the home of Mrs. J. L. Stevens, North Mulberry street, with Mrs. J. F. Morey as associate hostess.

Longer Middies And Sweaters Are In Vogue

Seriously, you don't have to look like an Indian to wear frontier fashions. They are as American as the pioneers themselves, and you know they have school appeal the way the girls are stocking up for their fall wardrobes. Among the popular new style ideas is the middy, or longer jumper top, and the longer sweater. They say the girls are wearing them two ways. Straight and as long as the wrist for both pullover and cardigan. Or the pull-over is worn inside like a blouse. Prominent in the colors most liked are the light yellows, the bright reds and greens, and as usual the plain colors are combined with plaids or checks, especially in the jacket and skirt ensembles.

If campus and class-room clothes sound casual, then "date" dresses may be classifield in the other extreme. These dresses are trimmed. Everywhere one sees velveteen and corduroy in complete dresses are trimmed with lacet collars or colored applique borders. Sometimes color is applied in varicolored bands of grosgrain ribbon—red, green and yellow, for example, bordering the skirt and yoke. Plain colored corduroy dirndle skirts are worn with Celanese rayon jersey tops. You can buy the skirts and the shirts separately, and combine your own colors. And this combination, by the way is also sold with ankle-length dirndles, too.

POSTPONE NATURE CLUB.

Announcement is being made that the meeting of the Mansfield Nature club scheduled for tonight has been postponed until Friday, Sept 12.

Eide, mother of the bride-elect, was hostess.

While in college he was captain of the Scabbard and Blade, a member of Tau Beta Pi, professional engineering fraternity, and the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. He was elected member of Sigma Xi, national honorary engineering society. He is now associated with the E. I. du Pont de Nemours and company. His father, A. D. Caddell, was former secretary of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce.

Although the date has not yet been set for the wedding it will be held some time early in October at the Indianola Lutheran church.

Look Scrubby And You Will Feel Scrubby

By MME. QUI VIVE

When the husband intimates that housework is child's play, that it's your own fault if you haven't plenty of leisure, do you go haywire and want to smack him? Is it nothing to prepare three meals a day, make beds, hustle the carpet sweeper over the rugs, answer the telephone, order groceries, bathe the family cherubs, comfort their hurts, find ways to amuse them? The man's crazy, that's all. One week of it and he'd run away.

There are women who are able to take the wife-and-mother job casually, keeping cool and collected. They're lucky. They never get fussed even when the Daddy drags home guests for dinner without telephoning beforehand. These women are good troupers, The average woman is not like that. She feels that she is overworked, needs more play. We have come to the conclusion that the woman who never thinks of herself, who gives her whole life to her family, is a bit of a silly. First thing she knows she gets to be a sourpuss. What then? If she falls to pieces spiritually and emotionally no doctor or beauty operator can put her all together again.

Two aids are at hand: to be methodical about house work and save steps, to demand obedience from the children. Children were never as spoiled as they are today, owing largely to that frenzy of child psychology that swept the country a few years ago, the idea being that children should express themselves even though, in doing so, they throw a carving knife at mama's head.

When a child has respect for a mother's intelligence, knows that she means business, he will do as he is told. This miracle can be accomplished through love and authority. No tears need be shed. If the child wins every fight he is going to have a bad time later. Life will discipline him.

The happiness or unhappiness of the boss of the domestic work depends upon her viewpoint. If she thinks her job is terrible so will it be If she has fun with the kids, it is a different kettle of fish. Then she'll keep young at heart and sweet of soul: that's the big thing. She should keep in mind that it will be only a few years before the children will be off to college, then off to the altar, and she and the Daddy will live in a quiet, lonely house. She will wish then that she had had a fuller, more complete enjoyment of their childhood.

Looking pretty gives one courage and strength. Trimness of appearance, extreme neatness, sassy little house frocks lighten the work. They actually do. Look scrubby and you'll feel scrubby.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"NOTHING so extravagant as that, Mary," I told her. "I have had some good luck occasionally".

"Yes, I've heard it's called that by some envious souls," she countered, wrinkling her nose at me.

"But," I said gravely, uttering a fear which was clutching at me, "I must tell you that some of the apparently simple codes are sometimes the hardest to solve, because the unskilled people who fashion them sometimes forget the rules."

"I shouldn't wonder if that is what has happened," she said thoughtfully. "Marion never was much good at the code-writing, and she used to get awfully muddled over the messages."

She stopped to pick up the small black book lying upon the floor beside the bed, where it patently had dropped from her hand.

"Come on back to the other room," I said, "and let's look this and the letter over together."

Madge Works with Mary

"I know everything's going to be all right now," she said, as she drew a chair for me to the table where she had been working. Then she sat down opposite me, and put Marion's letter on the table between us.

"Poor Marion!" she said, with a return to dolor, and gulped down a sob. "I could tear myself to pieces for being so stupid."

"That wouldn't help matters any, Mary," I told her a bit impatiently, as I rapidly turned the pages of the small black book which held the childish code Mary had devised so long ago for Marion's diversion, in order, as she frankly had told me, to keep the child from "tagging at her heels" continually.

The first pages were taken up with an arbitrary arrangement of letters and figures — a simple thing with "a equals 2, b equals y," and so on down and up the alphabet, while next the alphabet was arranged in combinations that meant the first ten numbers.

Then came a list of words which, when misspelled, were marked as making the words before or after them, or which they enclosed, have a totally different meaning to what they appeared to express.

My pulse skipped a beat as I saw listed first of all the word "believe."

"When this word is spelled wrong," the notation beneath it in the book read, "the words next it have an exactly different meaning."

With a hand that I vainly tried to keep steady, I took up Marion's pitiful letter and read the first sentences.

"Dear Ronald—You'll hate me forever when you read this. But please believe me, I can't help it. This thing is to strong for me.

"I might as well get it over with. I don't love you any more, not the way we thought. It all went when I met this other man.

"I can't tell you why, Ronald. I can't explain it, but it was all over with me in a minute, and it was the same with him.

"I tried, honestly I did, but you woodn't want me to make beleive, wood you, Ron?"

Forced to Write Letter

Mary was watching me intently, and when I looked from the code book she burst into excited speech.

"You see, don't you? That 'beleive' before and after those first sentences in her letter means that what she has said about loving another man is all bosh?"

"Yes, I see that clearly," I said.

"And there's another thing I've found out from the code," Mary went on. "She was forced to write this letter."

Pictures Can Help Teach Young Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

The mother of a baby 18 months of age named a few toys the child spends some time with, but added: "She likes to have picture books to look at but doesn't like to be read to."

I wrote the mother to go on encouraging her child to identify objects from picture books and told her to try this method. With this interest the baby is ready for you to say or read a few words about the pictures. Sit down beside her with a beautiful book like Johnny Crow's Garden, by Leslie Brooks. It has a large picture on each page, beneath which is but a line of reading. Gently restrain her from turning the pages roughly or rapidly, or turn them very slowly yourself, as you read the line at the bottom of each page.

Don't Let Interest Flag.

As soon as the little girl grows restless or shows loss of interest, close the book and put it beyond her reach. After several hours or a day, bring it out again and proceed as before. Continue in this manner for a week, or month, if necessary, till she manifests growing interest in listening while you read.

While she looks at the picture she also hears you read a few words about it. The picture takes on added meaning and she connects the words. What she sees is enriched by what she hears and what she hears is enriched by what he sees. By and by she will beg you to read from the same pictured pages time after time.

Sing and Talk to Baby.

To the mother of a child still younger, let me suggest that you sing lullabies to him, especially while caring for him, as if you were singing them for your own amusement. Also say with lots of jungle, in a sing-song way, some of the most familiar nursery rhymes.

Also, we trust, you have from the child's early months talked to him as you cared for him. "Now we will put on the stocking, now we put on the shoe," and so on. Keep on talking first about what the child can understand, later adding rhymes.

Teach Use of Books.

I have written a paragraph on "Teaching the baby to use a book," in that pamphlet of mine, "Education of Young Children Through Celebrating Their successes," to be had by sending five cents to the U. S. Office of Education, Washington, D. C. Also you may have a list of books from which to read to the baby and young child, by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems.

'Q. A mother of two boys 12 and 4 wants to know how she can get them to play together in peace.

A. She cannot, except occasionally. She should know they live in two different worlds. Each should have his own pals and playmates. The younger should be disciplined not to bother the older nor to bother his things. Also the older should have privileges and responsibilities not had by the younger.

Chopped, ripe olives put into meat, fish or fowl loaves give an interesting new "come-on" flavor.

Girl Is Interested In Her Work

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I met her while we were both still in school, and we went together during our senior year. Now she has a position in the government and is losing all interest in everything but her job.

She always was very jealous of a girl I went with before I met her. Would you advise me to try and date my ex-girl? I wouldn't want anything to come between my second girl and me, because I think a great deal of her. Do you think it best to just wait and give her a chance to get used to having a job? Or should I try to forget her?

Wondering.

It really is very encouraging to hear of a young lady who takes her government work so seriously that she seems to have forgotten everything else. Since it's so new to her, why not give her a chance? Let her get used to it and then you might ask her for another date.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 years old and like two boys very much. One has been away for four years and we correspond; and the other is here from out-of-town and comes to see me once or twice a week. Neither of these boys has asked me to go steady, but both act as if they are very fond of me.

The one who is away is coming home in September and wants to see me. Shall I tell him I've been going with another boy, or shall I keep it to myself and see what happens? I don't want to lose either one of them, because I've grown fond of both of them.

Turnesa.

If a girl is not positively engaged, there is no obligation on her part to tell about her other boy friends. I hope you'll not only keep these two, but add a few more to your quota. You don't strike me as sufficiently in love with either of the boys mentioned to consider marriage.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The girl I've been going around with lately has given me many delightful dates, and she's very charming. I have never been sentimental when with her, but wonder if it's asking to much on my part to expect her to show a little affection toward me? It always seems to me I've expressed my feelings by asking her for these date. Dan.

My dear young man, in this country it's the custom for a boy to make the advances. This most attractive girl is just showing you that she's a little fastidious. If she gets sentimental without any encouragement from you, you'll more than likely feel that she's cheapening herself.

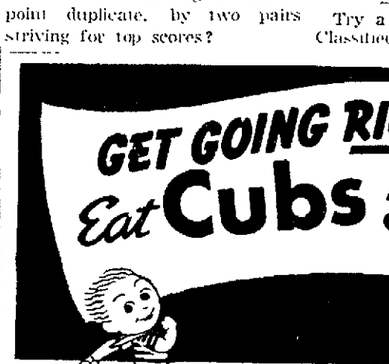
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PICK OFF THE LOSERS

When you see a long set-up suit in the dummy, plan plenty of trumps, the only thing for you to do on the defensive is to pick up as many tricks as you can in the side suits before the declarer gets to work on the trumps and the long suit. There are three possible exceptions to this. One is to lead that long suit to your partner for a ruff, if there is a good chance he is blank in it. The second is if there is a chance to shorten the dummy by making it ruff, so it will not be able to get into the lead after the defensive trumps are gone and the big suit is run. The third is to knock out a side entry if the dummy contains one and seems to require it.



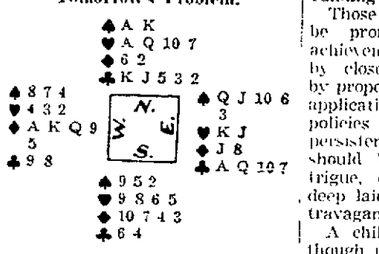
(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Dbl	1 ♠	2 ♥
4 ♠	Dbl

West led his diamond 9 to the A, and East decided without a moment's thought that he wanted to prevent ruffs in the dummy. So he returned the spade 6, the 9 winning. The diamond K immediately furnished a discard of the dummy's only heart loser. The spade 3 to the 10 was won by the Q, and East decided then, much too late, to try to make it hard for South to use that club suit. He led back the diamond Q, but South ruffed it with dummy's spade J and led three top clubs. East ruffed the third, but could do nothing else, as he had only red cards. Dummy could ruff any one of them with the spade K and then run clubs until he got ruffed.

If East had stopped to think, he would have realized from the lead that South had the diamond K, and that as soon as the declarer got the lead he would toss the dummy's heart on it. He should have returned his heart Q to West's A, and the spade A-Q then would have produced the setting tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

CONFLICTING and deceptive testimonies may be found among this day's stellar influences. While there is promise of reward for faithful and energetic attention to affairs in hand, with augury of much solid ground to be found in perplexing situations through hard work, sound policies and proper practical details and executive ability, yet there is an undercurrent that is misleading, cunning and fradulent.

Those whose birthday it is may be promised some worthwhile achievement and enduring good by close adherence to business, by properly directed and practical application of sound methods and policies as well as indomitable persistence. Extreme precaution should be exercised against intrigue, duplicity, imposition and deep laid schemes as well as extravagance.

A child born on this day, although it has ability and energy, with promise of success through concentrated effort, yet may squander its chances and its substance on pleasure, indulgences or unworthy alliances.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — The ringing opening statement of Vice President Wallace's SPAB, or super duper defense board—the belated 1941 model of the 1918 war industries board—was good oratory. But it leaves room for a little questioning.

Johnson

In the first place, what is most needed now is less rhetoric and more action, fewer promises of what we're "gonna" do and more records of what we actually have done.

In the second place, the announcements, almost as new discoveries, of policies effectively and successfully applied in 1918 (such as conservation, standardization, reclamation, plant-conversion and intelligent priorities) raise some doubt about whether these boys yet know or even suspect what it is all about.

In the third place, all the emphasis here is how "less essential" uses are to be absolutely subordinated to military requirements. But, when Mr. Wallace was asked a few timid questions about what the total requirements are, he didn't have any answers.

If military production for ourselves, Britain, the Russian Communists and the Chinese whatchamaycallems is to take absolute precedence, and if the total equals a bad year's entire American industrial production, what is going to be left for the American people? The mathematical answer is in plain words, zero.

I can't recall the 1918 war board making any ringing announcement whatever at its first meeting. It first made a kind of collection of itself and took a look around to see what were the controlling facts and figures on requirements. It was especially charged with the duty of conserving civilian supply.

That it did, and, while it demanded great sacrifices where they were necessary, it first made absolutely sure that they were necessary and used every ingenuity to temper or avoid their most painful bearing instead of proceeding to them almost as a primary aim and advertising them as a virtue of its administration.

It is now being frequently said that our present defensive effort exceeds in production anything attained in 1918. On the available fragmentary comparable figures, I don't believe it is true. Considering the tremendous increase in American industrial capacity it is a reproach if it is not true. It is a further reproach, because the methods that obtained that 1918 production and the lessons therefrom were all written in the books and have mostly been neglected until just now.

Finally, the World war problem was entirely different. The Allies had passed the peak of their man-power. They had built up the curve of their production of munitions, which was advancing beyond their needs. It would have been folly for us not to have utilized it—which we did. For these and other reasons we purchased our half of our supplies for our A. E. F. abroad. This condition is today reversed. No just comparison can be made.

This board would do well to get busy, stop making ringing statements, and hunting alibis, learn the true job and produce results.

GAS SHORTAGE NEARS END AS TANKERS MOVE

Railroad Cars Start Steady Stream of Gasoline To Eastern Seaboard.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON— Speedy termination of the eastern petroleum shortage was indicated today as thousands of railroad tank cars started pouring a steady stream of oil and gasoline into the 17 states of the Atlantic Seaboard area.

An emergency freight rate reduction of 25 per cent on gasoline and fuel oil and 50 per cent on crude oil was agreed to last night by railroads and principal petroleum companies thus assuring immediate utilization of some 20,000 surplus tank cars for hauling these commodities to the east.

Spokesmen for the railroads declared that operation of the 20,000 tank cars completely solved the eastern shortage problem. They expressed the belief that within a few weeks there would be no necessity for continuing the nightly curfew on sales of gasoline in the eastern states.

By reducing freight charges 25 per cent on gasoline and fuel oil, the oil companies will be able to ship their products for approximately four to four and one-half cents per gallon. The present shipping rate is five and one-half cents.

Although this shipping cost is still higher than the rate charged by tankers, pipelines and barges, the oil companies have agreed to utilize sufficient railway cars to assure the eastern area its normal petroleum needs.

If the added cost is passed on to the consumers it will mean little more than a one cent rise in the retail price.

Not all motorists can make payment of their fines for parking meter violations so blithely as G. W. Bahl. Having received a ticket, one of several in the past few months, Bahl sent the following communication to police headquarters: "Enclosed find a likeness of George Washington, the Father of this country, who if living today, would have something to say on this one-hour parking. They parked all night and all day, and no one said them nay!" Bahl added a postscript "When do we get two-hour parking? It surely is time that we set two-hour parking for a dime."

The increasing number of jobs for young people is making it difficult for city and county schools attendance officers to get some of the high school pupils back into the classrooms this week. More boys and girls are asking for working permits while others are staying out of school without going to the trouble of obtaining permits, the officers said. Harry J. Sir Louis, who keeps watch over the rural school pupils, said one of his worries is in getting girls to leave jobs in private homes which pay from $3 to $5 a week to go back to high school. "There ought to be a law against hiring school girls at that wage to do housework so that married women can make good money on defense jobs," Sir Louis commented.

Joe C. Hartline, for the past 18 years manager of the City Loan company, retires from business today, handing the reins over to Frank M. Remy, formerly of Lima. Included in their plans are an extensive tour of the Canadian Rockies, and national parks in the west. They have leased their home on Lexington road to Remy for the winter.

LORAIN STRIKE IN SECOND DAY

CIO Dispute Over Bargaining Election Slows Work on Ore Ships.

BULLETIN

LORAIN—(UP)—A U. S. conciliation service representative was expected today to attempt a settlement of a strike that stopped most operations at the local yards of the American Shipbuilding company, including work on $10,000,000 worth of defense orders.

(By International News Service)

LORAIN—A strike of more than half of the 1,100 workers of the American Shipbuilding company, went into its second day today as Frank Dominski, president of the CIO marine and ship builders union renewed his efforts to have company officials recognize the union.

Although Dominski claimed the CIO has a 2 to 1 majority in the plant, the AFL union won a bargaining rights election conducted Aug. 29 by the NLRB in seven of the company's Great Lakes yards. The Lorain strike has not affected the other yards.

William McPhillips, national organizer for the CIO union, said he planned to protest the election because, he claimed, AFL organizers had been permitted to talk to employes in the Cleveland yards during lunch hour and on company time.

Partial operations continued although work had been slowed up on two ore carriers being constructed for the Pittsburgh Steamship company, and a $6,500,000 contract for two large fishing trawlers and four mine sweepers for the United States navy.

In addition to the jurisdictional dispute, the AFL sought a new contract providing for a 12 per cent wage increase, paid vacations and a grievance committee in each of the seven yards.

Company officials thus far have refused to discuss the strike.

37TH'S HARD HITTING TACTICS DURING WAR GAMES GETS PRAISE

(By Associated Press)

GRANTZ, La.—Ohio's 37th division and its commanding officer, Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, drew high praise today for "hard hitting tactics" employed during the Louisiana war games.

"Convoy to the officers and men of the 37th division" Daley's message read. "My appreciation of their excellent performance.

"The completeness of the protection of the Calcasie and the Sabine rivers against tank crossings in the first phase of the exercises and the remarkable advance over almost impassable roads in the second phase of operations evidenced the high state of morale and the excellent progress made in training."

The engineer regiment was lauded separately by Daley for its achievements in facilitating the advance of infantry and artillery over hazardous terrain.

The 37th presently is engaged in a series of field exercises in which they perform as a unit of the entire third army against an outlined foe. These maneuvers are preparatory excursions to the larger war games scheduled to begin around Sept. 15.

He told Elliott to report for work immediately.

Elliott, his wife and four children appeared yesterday and demanded the job.

Floyd Byrnes, office manager, learned that Elliott had telephoned from Portsmouth, O., and had traveled 2,300 miles to pick prunes.

"My bakery business was getting me down and I thought I'd like a change from pies to prunes," Elliott explained.

Byrnes found the Elliott family a prune picking job.

Will the Ohio State baseball league operate next summer? Will it have six teams or eight teams, or will it fold? Will Mansfield have a ball club next summer, will it be in the Ohio State league, or in the Mid-Atlantic league? Will Mansfield have a place to play ball?

These are questions which are currently puzzling the big-wigs of professional baseball in Mansfield, and they can't begin to know the first part of the answer until the fall meeting of the Ohio State league is held, probably late this month and probably at Tiffin, the most central point.

Fostoria is ready to fold, but is making a last ditch effort to sell out to a big league team in order to keep baseball in Fostoria. Tiffin is in much the same shape and is also scouting around for a big league angel.

Both Findlay and Grover Hartley appear to agree that Grover is through in Findlay. Whether he'll sell his franchise and attempt to start up elsewhere is something he's been pondering for months.

Mansfield can't get any more big league help as long as it plays at the Fairground. You have that on the word of President George Satterlee of the Braves and Buzz Wetzel, head of the Cleveland Indian farm club.

Unless substantial backing from big league clubs is forthcoming, the Ohio State league is ready to fold. It's hanging on the ropes right now.

There's talk in the air that the Yankees are ready to pull out of Akron with their Mid-Atlantic league franchise, and that they'd be interested in moving to Mansfield if a baseball diamond can be found. The Mansfielders would like to know, soon, what the Ohio State loop is going to do.

* * *

In any event, Mansfield must get a new diamond if it is to have league ball next summer. The Fairground seating arrangement isn't conducive to the promotion of baseball interest. Crowds may turn out occasionally, but they don't get close enough to the players to be able to tell one from another, and they can't be expected to become interested in players who remain strangers right before their eyes.

And, too, it's almost impossible to keep the diamond in condition at the Fairground, and some of the many injuries which plagued the Braves this summer were due to the rough landscape. Big league teams won't take a chance on that condition long.

* * *

The infielder gives the ball a chase,
And drops in a hole back of second base.

Oh, well, it wasn't that bad, even after Old Man Mose gave up the ground keeping job

But brother, it was bad! On the last day of the season, only the hardest hearted kind of a scorekeeper would have given an error on a chance after the ball once hit the ground. No one knew where it would bounce and players were slipping at the onion strictly in self defense.

And me I ain't hard hearted, Mame!

"There one thing they can't say about this season," says Prexy Satterlee. "They can't say we didn't get enough publicity. You gave us all we had coming and then some."

It isn't often a newspaper guy gets thanked for his Boy Scout deeds, so I soaked that one up. But it was easy to go along with a club that was in there battling for the flag right up to the last day.

Bob Feller Finally Gets 22nd

Tenth Inning Tribal Rally Nets Three Runs.

DETROIT —(AP)— The Indians are off on the right foot in their four-game series with the Tigers, but Bob Feller had a rough time of it yesterday in getting his 22nd win of the season.

* * *

A tenth-inning rally by the Indians was good for three runs, and Bob escaped with a 7 to 6 victory as Detroit's half of the tenth produced only a pair of tallies.

* * *

Feller had been waiting since Aug. 21, when he beat the Yankees in a close one, to get No. 22. in the interim he had dropped one to Boston and been shelled off the mound by the Tigers during their visit to Cleveland, although he was not charged with the loss Detroit administered.

Al Smith went to the mound today against Buck Newsome.

Today's best advice for baseball fans is to get your nickels ready for a subway series—the New York Yankees have clinched the American League pennant and the Brooklyn Dodgers have been handed the National League lead on a big, brimming platter.

The Yanks bombed their way to their fifth championship in six years yesterday by smashing the Boston Red Sox, 6-3, with a 10-hit assault on two of Boston's best pitchers, Dick Newsome and Mickey Harris, while Atley Donald was holding the Red Sockers in check on five safeties.

The New Yorkers thus achieved their 91th victory against 45 defeats for a 20-game lead over the Chicago White Sox—who regained exclusive possession of second place through the crumpling of the Red Sox.

* * *

The triumph, which put the Yanks out of reach of all rivals, clinched the pennant at the earliest date in American League history

All this was no surprise to anyone. The noise like distant thunder heard in the major leagues yesterday was the St. Louis Cardinals crashing in a doubleheader at Chicago, 3-0 and 4-3.

The Redbirds were presented with the same kind of golden opportunity Brooklyn fumbled on Wednesday. On that day St. Louis was rained out and the Dodgers had a chance to take charge of the senior circuit by paddling the last-place Phillies in a doubleheader. Brooklyn divided the contests and left the Cards atop the league.

Yesterday it was Brooklyn that was rained into idleness and the Cardinals who played a doubleheader with the same huge reward at stake. But they not only muffed the opportunity, their double defeat dropped them one full game back of Brooklyn.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Pirates closed the gap between themselves and the third-place Reds to a half-game by beating Cincinnati again, 4-0, before rain halted play in the last of the fifth. Rip Sewell held the world champions to one hit over this abbreviated distance while the Pirates pelted Bucky Walters for five.

He's Card Ace

LON WARNEKE

Biggest ace in the Cardinals' deck as the Redbirds head for a pennant in the hot National league race, Lon Warneke, above, recently made pitching history by hurling a no-hit game. Warneke, who is one of the leading Cardinal twirlers this season—he has won 15 games—came to the Cardinals from the Chicago Cubs in 1936.

Drawings to determine first round opponents in the eight-day title grind are scheduled tonight.

Five Ohio cities—Youngstown, Cleveland, Akron, Toledo and Dayton—have representatives in the field.

Nelson Trails Golf Pack

Dodson Leads at Quarter of Tam O' Shanter Open.

By EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Whirlaway of professional golf, Slim Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., was perfectly satisfied with his second-at-the-quarter position as the field headed for the halfway pole today in the $11,000 Tam O'Shanter open championship.

Nelson was not the pacemaker as play began in the second round of this richest tournament of the year. That spot was occupied by Leonard Dodson, 29-year-old professional from Kansas City. But the quiet-spoken Nelson, one of the greatest stretch finishers the pro sport ever has produced, had a 67 round he believed was all the start needed in his quest for the tourney's top prize of $2,000.

Dodson started the second round with a seven under par 65 as the result of a great performance yesterday which set a new competitive record for the Tam O'Shanter layout. His card showed one bogie, an eagle and six birdies.

Nelson was two shots back at 67. Out in 34, he came back in 33, remarking as he left the 18th green "That round was one of the truest I've ever played and if my game holds I'll be in there all the way."

Both he and Dodson, however, were certain to have plenty of competition for the $2,000 and 29 other cash awards.

At 68 was Johnny Bulla of Chicago, with no fewer than five players in the 69 bracket, among them Ralph Guldahl, twice former National Open champion, and Dick Metz of Chicago.

Vic Ghezzi, the Professional Golfers association titleholder, was working on a two under par 70, one shot under the first round total turned in by Craig Wood, National Open champion.

Millers, Blues Fight For Third

(By Associated Press)

Minneapolis and Kansas City are keeping the American Association playoff-planners in hot water with their blistering fight for third place.

With Columbus in as regular season champion and Louisville virtually a cinch for second place, the Millers and Blues are scrapping so hard it's impossible to make pairings for the Shaughnessy playoff series. Tied for third yesterday, they split a doubleheader last night and remained deadlocked.

Both Minneapolis-Kansas City games were shutouts. The Millers took the opener, 5 to 0, the Blues the finale 2 to 0

Toledo's eleventh-hour effort to reach the first division resulted in 3 to 2 and 2 to 1 victories over Louisville.

The Red Birds scored in the last of the ninth to break a tie and defeat Indianapolis, 5 to 4, for the 17th time in 21 games.

Clowns Strut Stuff Tonight In Fairground Exhibition

Baseball and fun will be on tap at the Fairground here tonight starting at 8 o'clock when those funny men of the diamond, the Ethiopian Clowns of Miami, Fla., semi-pro champions of the United States, step off for an exhibition game with the Krantz Old Dutch, Toledo federation champs, who are en route to the national tournament which starts in Youngstown tomorrow.

* * *

The fun part of the program starts promptly at 8 o'clock when "Peanut" Nyasses, No. 1 comedian, struts out doing his "Shipwreck Walk" which will be the talk of Mansfield this time tomorrow night.

Peanut is a crack pitcher. Here's a stunt he pulled in Toledo recently. The Detroit Pepsi-Colas and Clowns were tied in the eighth inning when Pepsi-Cola got runners on second and third with two down. Peanut was called for relief duty and he strode to the box smoking a long, black cigar. Using a windup symbolic of a ballet dancer, he retired the next four batters in order, never taking the cigar out of his mouth.

A pepper game every bit as good as that turned on by the original House of David, followed by "Double Lightning Infield," an act in which the Clowns stage infield practice with two balls moving simultaneously features the pre-game show. Just for good measure, "Phantom Pool," golf match and crap shooting, clever skits, will be offered.

The game is halted temporarily in the seventh inning while the Clowns reel off a couple of novel and highly entertaining stunts. "Shadowball," an act in which the Clowns play sans a baseball is generally conceded to be tops among all extra attractions.

The final number in which L. C. Mofike goes fishing on the pitcher's mound is a scream. The flashy Clown centerfielder gives a vivid portrayal of a fisherman casting for fish, getting a bite, falling out of the boat and swimming to shore.

* * *

These Clowns are great entertainers. Tops in their profession. Old and young, women and children go wild over these nationally famed comedians who have attracted over one million, one hundred thousand fans this season. Fans are urged to get to the park early. Plan to bring the family along. This is really a treat. Popular prices will prevail.

Lima Appears Title Threat

Westies Went To State Tourney Semi-Finals.

Lima Westinghouse softball club has its eyes on the company's district championship in the tournament starting tomorrow morning at Liberty park diamond.

* * *

The Lima Westies already have won the Allen county softball championship, and the 11th Ohio district title, and went to the semi-finals of the state tournament, where they lost to Youngstown 4 to 3.

Youngstown in turn was defeated in the state championship game by the Toledo Page Dairies 2-0.

Val Settlemire, leading hurler of the Lima club has a record of nine victories and one defeat, while Merlin Hetrick and Jerry Faze each has won seven and lost three. Settlemire tossed a one-hit game in the state tournament against Cambridge.

* * *

The 11th Ohio district in which Lima competed has the second largest number of chartered softball teams in the state with 53, while the Columbus district leads with 54.

* * *

Cincinnati also looms as a leading contender for the Westinghouse district title, with a six-foot, four-inch twirler who has turned in two no-hit games this season.

Reeves Leads Camp Perry Shoot

CAMP PERRY, O.—(AP)—Dave Carlson, youthful national small bore rifle champion from New Haven, Conn., faced an uphill fight today to retain his laurels, but Harry Reeves, Detroit's straight-shooting policeman and holder of the national pistol title, looked like a repeater.

With four of the eight matches leading to the national small bore rifle crown out of the way, Carlson was a point behind Jack Lacy, another New Haven crackshot.

Reeves, however, with a score of 859 of 900 in three 45 caliber pistol events, was assured the national crown with that weapon and he held a 12-point edge over his nearest foe as the hundreds of marksmen headed into the nine remaining 22 and 38 caliber events making up the championship aggregate.

SMALL BOAT SKIPPERS HOLD ANNUAL MEET

SKANEATELES, N. Y. —(AP)— —Twenty-five of the best small boat sailors in the east and midwest hit the starting mark today in the third annual quest for the Lightning Class association's national championship on Skaneateles lake. There is no outstanding favorite.

The 19-foot sloop is comparatively new in sailing competition, but skippers and crews bring considerable seamanship experience for the two-day, three race program.

Yankee Dynasty Returns to Throne In Junior Circuit

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The Yankee dynasty rules the American league again after a one year interlude.

In winning their fifth pennant in six years and their 12th in history, the Yankees were up to their old tricks. They set a new record—clinching the pennant five days earlier than any other American league pennant winner. The old record was set by the 1936 Yanks who clinched their pennant on Sept. 9.

* * *

Now the 1941 Yanks would like to wipe out another record set by the 1936 Yanks—winning the pennant by a margin of 19½ games. With a 20-game lead the current Yankee club has an excellent chance to do it.

The clincher was a 6-3 triumph over the Red Sox at Boston yesterday—a drab enough affair, especially since Manager Joe McCarthy, Joe DiMaggio and Red Ruffing were in New York nursing a variety of ailments.

Even though the Yanks' "Big Three" weren't on hand for the killing, they had plenty to do with hoisting the Bronx bombers back on the American League throne. Joe McCarthy did a magnificent job of rebuilding and juggling the 1941 Yanks—some critics think it's the best managerial job turned in by him since he took over the New York club in 1931.

DiMaggio was the spearhead of the Yankee attack through June and July when the McCarthymen were practically unbeatable. Ruffing was the ace and stabilizer of a Yankee pitching staff that was considered the team's weakest point before the season opened.

Although there's no campaign on to rank the current pennant winner with great Yankee teams of the past, the 1941 Yanks have two things in common with their predecessors—home run punch and ability to knock down their rivals.

* * *

The Yanks have hit 138 homers. Charlie Keller is the leader with 33 followed by Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich 27 each and Joe Gordon 22.

Joe DiMaggio started his fabulous hitting streak on May 15 and he hit in 56 straight games for a new record.

This may not be the best Yankee team ever put together but it does not have to apologize for the results it achieved.

Is This Plain Old Publicity?

Night Club John Starts Hunt For White Hopes.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Remember the good old days when Jack Johnson was head man of the heavyweights and everybody who didn't have anything else to do was running up and down the country-side looking for a white hope?

Well, those days are here again. Now comes a Mr. Frank Barbaro of Detroit who says he is going to conduct a big tournament in the hope of producing a new white hope who will rise out of obscurity and knock Joe Louis kicking.

* * *

It is difficult at this stage of proceedings to tell whether Mr. Barbaro really is concerned over the boxing situation or whether he merely is trying to grab off a piece of publicity for a night spot he operates in Detroit.

I have my suspicions, and, being a generous fellow,I will give them to you. They are that Mr. Barbaro wants some publicity. Why is it necessary to find a white hope? And if it is necessary what's the matter with a gent named Lou Nova? He is white, he is hopeful and he can fight, as you will see when he and Louis get together on the 29th of this month.

Mr. Barbaro's stunt has been tried before, and it would be a good idea for him to consult with James J. Johnston before devoting time and money to a tournament. Johnston once inserted an ad in the papers announcing that he would interview young men with strong backs, sufficient weight and muscle seasoned with a dash of courage who were interested in trying for a shot at the heavyweight championship.

The result left Johnston speechless, which is no small feat if you know Mr. Johnston. They came from everywhere. The only difficulty was that none of them could fight a lick. After a time, Mr. Johnston abandoned his idea and went back to the theory that it was better to get one good heavyweight prospect and sink or swim with him.

What I would like to ask and I hereby do ask is what is the matter with the guy who is champion now? There never was a cleaner fighter than Joe Louis and if you don't believe it ask any man who ever refereed one of his fights. He minds his own business, he fights anybody and everybody who has the slightest pretense of being a heavyweight challenger.

* * *

He can be champion, for my dough, as long as he can keep belting out the boys and if Mr. Barbaro would like some free advice, here it is: Forget those white hopes and confine the search to chorus girls for the night club. They're much prettier.

Ohio-Owned Nags Win In Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. —(AP)— Ohio-owned trotters and pacers captured a major share of purses on the Indiana State fair's Grand Circuit program yesterday, winning three out of the four races.

Milestone, bay gelding owned by Joseph A. Neville of Delaware, O., topped the Buckeye contingent's performance, turning in a two-minute mile for a new record in the $1,500 L. S. Ayres & Co. 2:08 trot. Wayne Smart of Columbus piloted the steed to victory in straight heats.

Another three-heat winner was Senator Abbe of O. H. Lowen's Wilmington, O., stables. Senator Abb's fastest time was 2:01, his slowest 2:01½, for the $1,200 Indiana 2:14 pace.

Dr. Hugh M. Parshall of Urbana won the $1,000 commissioner of agriculture stake for three-year-old trotters with Perpetual in two out of three heats.

(Pinch-Hitting For Eddie Brietz)

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Not since wrong-down Getchell and fifth-down Friesell has there been a blast such as the sports writers are letting loose on the new collegiate grid substitution rule. . . . The pros used it in the All-Star contests here and in Chicago, and showed just how foolish the unlimited subs can make a game look . . . in the one here the other night, one of the New York Giants was in and out of the game 17 times.

HOT HASH

There'll be some news busting in the next week or two about a certain major league franchise. . . . Joe Louis' whole fistic family is burned up at guys who think that the Bomber's slipping because he sought a postponement for the first time in his career . . . and Co-manager Julian Black comes right out in meeting with the prediction that Joe'll stiffen Lou Nova—but good.

HIT-AND-RUN

Snappiest card to hit this desk in y'ars was the one announcing the arrival of a new sports writer in Grand Rapids (Mich.) Sports Ed Heinie Martin's Bailiwick. . . . It's a neat job billed as the 1941 world series statistics, with leadoff man—Richard Lane Martin, batting average — seven pounds, and score—one hit, one run, no errors . . . congrats, pal. . . . There's been lotsa talk that Gerry Priddy, who started out as a second sacker, will be given a whirl on first by the Yanks. . . . But the real low-down is that he's being groomed to take a crack at third if Red Rolfe looks bad again in '42. . . . Kiyoshi Nankama the latest Hawaiian swim sensation—he won two AAU champs this year—is headed for Ohio State.

Regatta Sails At Sandusky

First National Inland Meet For Comet Class.

SANDUSKY, O.—(AP)—Sailboats of the Comet class spread their sheets on Sandusky bay today for their first national regatta on inland waters.

The three-day regatta is the seventh annual national meet, but the races have always been held along the eastern seaboard since the class was formed at Easton, Md., in 1934.

Today the class has more than 2,000 boats registered in 76 fleets. Most fleets have east coast home ports, but the Rocky River, O., fleet has 33 boats, and there are other fleets at Lorain, Toledo, Cincinnati and even in land-locked Missouri.

An international character is given this year's contest by two boats from Puerto Rico, one from British Columbia, and at least one from Canada, among the two score competing.

Last year Philip A. Somervell of the Red Dragon Canoe club fleet, Edgewater Park, N. J., won the race at Huntington, L. I., in the Syrocco, with George Ghawn, jr., at crew. They are entered this year, but with a new boat.

COMMON SENSE GOVERNS NEW TRAFFIC RULES

Code Effective Tomorrow Sets Up Signals For Turns, Fixes Right-of-Way.

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of stories giving the highlights of the new state traffic code).

COLUMBUS — Common sense lies at the base of all rules governing right-of-way of vehicles, turns and passing as laid down by the new uniform traffic code which is effective tomorrow.

All vehicles approaching an intersection from the right have the right-of-way unless the intersection is marked otherwise.

Only three hand signals are recognized. They are: For making a left turn, hand and arm extended horizontally; for making a right turn, hand and arm extended upward; for a stop or slowing down, hand and arm extended downward.

Any vehicle making a left turn within an intersection must yield the right-of-way to vehicles approaching from the opposite direction.

Vehicles entering a through-highway must yield the right-of-way to vehicles already on the through-road.

A stop sign against any vehicle gives the right-of-way to all vehicles not blocked by a stop sign.

Vehicles entering a highway from a private road, driveway, alley or building must give the right-of-way to vehicles on the road.

Upon the approach of emergency vehicles, using siren or other sound devices, all other traffic must pull to the curb and remain still until the emergency vehicle has passed, unless a police officer directs otherwise. Street cars and trackless trollies also must stop.

The driver of the emergency vehicle in all instances must drive with due regard for the safety of all persons and property on the highway.

Pedestrians lawfully crossing a roadway within a cross-walk have the right-of-way over all vehicles.

When a vehicle stops to permit a pedestrian to cross at an intersection, it may not be passed by another vehicle.

Pedestrians crossing a roadway within a municipality at a place other than an intersection must give the right-of-way to all traffic. But the fact that a vehicle has the right of way over a pedestrian does not relieve the autoist from driving carefully.

When practicable, Pedestrians must move on the right half of crosswalks.

Pedestrians must use walks along a highway or street when there are such. If there are none, they must face on-coming traffic. In municipalities, pedestrians must use crosswalks unless they are an unreasonable distance apart.

Through-highways on which traffic has the right-of-way are designated by the law as those on which street cars, trackless trollies, electric cars or motor coaches carrying passengers for hire operates regularly.

The state highway department may designate other state highways as through-highways and local authorities may do likewise with roads under their jurisdiction. Stop signs with six-inch letters must be erected at intersections.

DISCOMFORT

SANTA FE, N M —(U P)—John E Miles discovered that the chair backs in the ante-room—where visitors await their turn to see the governor—slope forward instead of backward

As a result of the forward slope the governors guests sit down, grip the chair arms and brace their feet—all to keep from sliding off the uncomfortable chairs.

Rumor has it that the designer of the chairs created the forward incline to discourage loiterers in the ante-room.

BIDDING PROPS FAVORITES ON MARKET TODAY

But Minor Gains and Losses Remain Almost Evenly Divided By Stocks.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Mild bidding put props under a few favorites in today's stock market but many leaders were notably lacking support.

The list milled over an uneven range and minor gains and losses were pretty well divided.

Bonds and commodities were somewhat irregular.

Many with buying ideas inclined ot hold back, brokers said, in view of the cloudier international picture which included word of an attack on a U. S. destroyer by an unidentified submarine in the Atlantic. Fairly good business developments were offset to a considerable extent by persistent worries over taxes and governmental restrictions.

Notice was taken of the Dun & Bradstreet summary puttting this week's retail activities for the country as a whole at 23 to 28 per cent over the like period a year ago. Virtually all lines, it was found, felt the impact of increasing demand.

RAILWAY UNIONS APPROVE STRIKE

Vote Action To Back Demands For Increase In Pay; Zero Hour Set.

erating brotherhoods declared their members voted 98.7 per cent for a walkout, the "largest vote in the history of the big five in favor of a strike."

"It indicates," they said, "a determination on the part of railway employes in the transportation service to secure adequate compensation for the service rendered the carriers and the public. It represents a determination to share in the product of their labor in order to meet the ever-soaring prices of everything—food, clothing, shelter, taxes, etc."

Persons close to the negotiations of the past several weeks said the closest the carriers had come to meeting the brotherhoods' demands for 30 to 41 per cent wage increases was an offer of 10 per cent increase for the duration of the defense industry boom.

The brotherhood negotiators flatly refused to consider any offer which did not raise the basic wage structure. "We had no offer from the railroads on a wage increase which meant anything," said Alvanley Johnston, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Bert M. Jewell, head of the AFL department of railway labor employes, who spoke for 900,000 non-operating workers, said authorizations to walk out next Thursday had been sent today to the 14 unions outside the "big five." The operating unions did not set a definite strike date immediately.

Speaking for the 14 non-operating unions, Jewell made it clear the strike was called "to bring into play the last remaining machinery of the railway labor act."

URGES ONE-MAN DEFENSE BOARD

Baruch Repeats Belief; New Agency Formed To Aid Small Industries.

the part of the administrator to help the smaller business units of the country obtain a fair share of the defense orders, and to prevent, so far as possible, dislocation of industry and unemployment of workers in plants where production has been curtailed by priorities and material shortages."

Baruch had no immediate comment on this development. But he was no more than out of the White House door after lunching with the president yesterday when he told reporters what he thought should be done to speed vital production.

Baruch saw the new seven-member supply priorities and allocations board, headed by Vice President Wallace, as only a "faltering step forward."

Back in World war days, when he headed the war industries board, Baruch had—and used—the fullest power in throwing the nation's entire productive capacity behind the military effort. So successful was he in marshalling industry that Germany's beaten Marshal Von Hindenburg admitted "The war was won in the American industrial centers."

The new contract distribution office will have branches in various states and become one of the most important divisions of OPM, the White House stated.
